Save Our Nation: A Critical Message to America First Leaders and Others

“Men will either be ruled by God or by tyrants.” –William Penn

*“Commit your way to the Lord, trust also in Him, and He will bring it to pass.”
–Psalm 37:5*

*“Like a muddied spring or a polluted well are the righteous who give way to the wicked.”
–Proverbs 25:26*

*“The truth is, all might be free if they valued freedom, and defended it as they ought.”
–Samuel Adams*

Note: Save the nation was first drafted in 2022 just prior to the midterms, and has now been updated in 2024 post election and ready for wider distribution. I hope that every American leader reads this message, as it could not be more needed or timely for exactly where we are today.

This message is one of explicit warning and strong encouragement to all America First leaders – including Republican House and Senate members, President Trump, Independents, solid Democrats, and leaders from all backgrounds - regarding the state of our nation and on what needs to be done in order to save it from the path of the certain destruction that it is now on.

Preface

I am an independent and someone who cares deeply about our nation, and has a love for our people, culture, institutions, values, and way of life. I feel qualified to write this statement in boldness and yet humility. I have studied history, the constitution, the scriptures, and cultural events for many years. I have a long history of writing to leaders – both political and cultural – on key issues in real time that have stood the test of time.

I am aware of America’s past shortcomings that still need to be worked out, but I am more aware that her past greatness exceeds those shortcomings exponentially.

I write this statement with zero partisanship, but rather only with a magnanimous sentiment for all good people, and those who are true to God and the country.

Nobody wishes that our country was healthy and strong, and centered on God, truth, and justice today more than I do. Nobody wishes that Republican and Democrat leadership were both solid and sound equally across every spectrum, and equally contributing to the greatness of this country more than I do. Nobody wishes that the Biden administration was among the best to ever serve America and the American people more than I do. But these are not the reality; the actual reality is devastating.

I have watched the clear decline of our society and the destruction of our country over the last few decades – especially the acceleration of this destruction over the last few years, which is now beyond all conception. I understand this ends in unmitigated disaster and horror if we do not act accordingly.

I am entirely dedicated to restoring and preserving the wholeness of America and its foundations for the good of all people, while simultaneously preventing the impending increase in civil disunion, widespread chaos, violence, and conflicts that we all see on the horizon.

I strongly support and am committed to helping any leader – Republican, Democrat, or Independent – who wants to effect true greatness for America, be a force for good, serve the people, and turn back the evil that is so evidently overtaking our country. I believe that it is incumbent upon every American and every good person to do everything in their power to defend America, prevent the collapse of our nation, and maintain the peace and good order of our society.

Introduction

We have before us one of the most powerful moments in all of history – the opportunity to save and restore our nation – a nation that was once the greatest on earth, and one that can still live up to the potential of its creed.

The way in front of us may well be difficult and hard (beyond what we now know) but more importantly, it is great and glorious. Difficult and hard because all hell is arrayed against us, and the evil instituted very deeply; great and glorious because God is with us so long as we are with him, and the amount of goodness and freedom to be gained is beyond imagination.

In effect, should we accept the awesome responsibility of this moment, we are in a second American revolution, one that is every bit as important and eminent as the first. But unlike the first, we are here now because of our own doing — having failed to keep the fruits of the first.

But now we can get it all back and move beyond where we ever have been. However, it's going to take everything; it's going to take a price we have not yet paid. And that is a good thing. For had we paid it — that is, had we done the hard and glorious things at the right time when circumstances demanded, we would easily have defeated those who came against our country, and we would be in a great place of health today.

And now we can finally do that which should have been done many years ago in many realms of our national life.

Saving and restoring our nation will require a total effort. It will require every patriotic citizen and leader to step into this battle with all their might, soul, and ingenuity. It will require an understanding of how we got here — what we neglected and surrendered, and what forces were working to undermine our country — and ensuring that this never happens again.

Ultimately, it will also require a new reliance on God because only by the power of God will we be able to overcome at the highest levels.

As far as specifically the results of the 2024 election, those results will only be as good as the follow through to them is great. We have been here before — where control of the government was in what we would deem the right hands, such as in 2016. But because of a lack of preparedness, readiness, and resolve at every level, we lost all that was gained.

This time it's going to be different. It must be. And it will be wonderful. All that is needed is the willingness. (Also see God's Hand in the 2024 Election Appendix A.)

We can view this time as a new beginning, one that must extend in the same direction for many years to come, and must eclipse every personality and every imperfection of our day.

Executive Summary

- We are living in unprecedented times in terms of the comprehensive level of evil, degeneracy, lawlessness, mass deception, propaganda, and corruption that is being aggressively leveled against our country, the American people, and humanity at large.
- The whole nation is in a state of emergency and the future of America is on the line. If the American people and their leaders do not wake up in time to the reality of the severe critical moment that we are in, and act in decisive power and clarity to defend the country, America as we know it, will be finished.
- The astounding and dire problems that America is facing have both natural and spiritual causes, and therefore require both natural and spiritual solutions. When the moral and spiritual crisis is reversed, and truth and righteousness restored, so too will all other crises be reversed.
- It has been a crisis of leadership over time that has, in large part, created the conditions that have now made our nation the most vulnerable to subjugation and annihilation in its history – as denoted by the many crises that we now simultaneously face, including the very real threat of nuclear conflict.
- Without having God, our leaders will fail the nation at the most critical moments. They will simply lack the courage, conviction, and strength to do what is most essential at the most critical moments.
- We are living in a post political world where our politics are no longer about truth and a healthy, vigorous exchange on nuanced differences, but instead are about good vs. evil, protecting the fundamental order of things, and the survival of a nation.
- To the degree that Republican and America First leaders thoroughly investigate, expose, reverse, and bring to account all of the corrupt, illegal, destructive, and immoral actions against America and the American people, will be to the degree that they do their job and are great in their day. To the degree that they fail to do this, will be to the degree that they fail to do their job.

- If America's leaders are going to be effective and on the right side of God and history, a dramatically new and elevated sharpened approach to leadership must be taken – one that centers on true spiritual strength, reliance on God, courage, wisdom, and a relentless pursuit of truth and justice.
- The most important and effectual thing that any individual running for office (or currently in office) can do in their position now is to seek and determine to do God's good will first.
- The country cannot be unified, made whole, or move forward until truth, justice, first principles, and moral authority is re-established in American governance.
- Additionally, there are certain major events – such as the 2020 presidential election and the Covid lockdowns/vaccine mandates – that were so great in the scope of the sheer damage to the nation and to the American people, that until they are reconciled and the truth be told about them, the country also cannot move forward fully or be made whole.
- Before addressing major problems and conflicts in the world (such as Russia-Ukraine, Israel-Hamas, etc.), we must first address our own major problems and internal conflicts, for it is in the absence of a strong America that all these other situations flourish.
- The despotism, degeneracy, dishonesty, and irrationality that is now becoming part of the working philosophy of the Left directly opposes every concept of truth and reason that was responsible for not only America's existence, but for the very foundation of western civilization itself.
- A new great awakening, both spiritual and cultural – one that touches every aspect of our society – is the greatest need of our times. A complete sweeping course correction and radical return to enlightened society and the fundamentals of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness are exactly what is required now if America is going to thrive again.
- Those who are in any way taking part in the destruction of our country are ultimately bringing dishonor, recrimination, and reproach upon themselves. They are known in part now, but will be further known in the near future for who they are and what they are doing.
- The first purpose of Congress (through its multiple responsibilities) is to protect the wholeness and sanctity of this nation, and the peace, prosperity and freedom of the good people of our country. Any leader from either party who does not now forcefully, soundly, unequivocally, and entirely reject, expose, and work to reverse the clear and established pattern of rising tyranny in all its forms in America, is a leader who is no longer fit to serve.
- Great nations that collapse do so in stages and by degrees, and have many clear indicators and predictors all along the way – including the relative silence and impotence of many otherwise good people and leaders. History indicates that America is somewhere in the middle stages of a collapse and take over.
- No greater understanding is needed by the average American than the understanding that the things they may be tempted to ignore now - unconstitutional and un-American activity, woke philosophy, and radical changes to our society - can only eventually bring them, their loved ones, and the country the loss of quality of life, loss of potential, and suffering.

- America First leaders and the conservative media must be prepared to fully defend the 2024 presidential election unlike the 2020 presidential election.
- The best way to prevent fraud from occurring in the 2024 election is to have exposed it in the 2020 election. The abject failure to not have done so on the part of many Republicans and conservative media members to this day has greatly contributed to the crisis that we are now in. America First leaders (and conservative media) must now be fully prepared to not only defend the 2024 presidential election, but also all attacks (foreign and domestic) against the nation.

PART 1

Overview – What Is Happening In America

Our beautiful country is under attack and is in peril. It is being taken right from under us, as things that were once unimaginable are now happening in plain view. A certain malignancy of corruption and degeneracy has been spreading across our land in recent years, as a growing insurgency of virulent dark forces and assorted elites and despotic power-driven individuals have gained control and influence over key areas of culture governance.

This “cabal” is undermining the nation by systematically destroying its foundations across every sector of society. In the process, when they can, they are using our laws, systems, and even our goodwill against us, while also using and taking advantage of the vulnerabilities, weaknesses, ignorance, and short-sightedness of leaders, businesses, educators, entertainers, athletes, and millions of unsuspecting Americans who have fallen under their spell to do their bidding and promote agendas, whether actively or passively.

We are at the point now where core institutions, once trusted by the populace, in many instances no longer serve the interests of the people and no longer cohere to moral and spiritual truth.

This is not a conspiracy, nor is it hyperbole. It is a statement of fact that is recognized by anyone with eyes to see and ears to hear. It is keenly demonstrated by the myriad of utterly bizarre, evil, and un-American events now happening right in front of the people on an ever-increasing basis. This is provable to the simplest of minds and by any rational and honest standard of observation or comparison to where we were just a short time ago.

What is happening in America represents an existential crisis, as everything is being turned upside down: the rules are being changed, the fundamentals of life supplanted, liberty removed, rights denied, language altered and bastardized, speech suppressed, truth questioned, reputations destroyed, elections rigged and made insecure where they can be, statistics grossly manipulated to present false narratives, laws inverted or changed to serve wrong agendas, heroes are made into villains and villains into heroes, justice is denied and justice is perverted, the border removed and illegal immigration encouraged, criminals emboldened, children propagandized, the people incessantly lied to, medical freedom threatened, corporations compromised and strong armed, the education system subverted, the media corrupted and owned, the treasury looted, God ignored, and the constitution torn asunder.

In short, the very essence of our American way of life – the ability to live free, pursue happiness, and accomplish greatness according to personal initiative and ability is being taken from us by removing the foundations upon which that ability depends.

What we are going through in our country, we have never gone through before - we have only known it from a far or from the history books. This lack of experience explains how it could possibly be that so many millions of Americans – still to this day – have no real working knowledge or understanding of what is happening to them. It explains, in part, how they could have allowed themselves to be almost totally deceived on so many levels and made into passive participants in the destruction of their own country and the taking of their own freedoms.

But through all this madness, a shaking is occurring and an increasing number of millions of Americans are becoming aware of what is happening, making the next great awakening possible. Ultimately, only a spiritual and cultural revival can save America.

The Greatest Threat: The War On America

The single greatest threat to our Republic is the internal attack against it. This war on America is the attack against our moral, spiritual, creative, entrepreneurial, constitutional, and patriotic foundations and values. No other threat comes even remotely close, as it is from this one threat that all the other threats that we now face have either been generated or significantly exacerbated.

This internal war on America has now grown to be exponentially the greatest and most threatening war we have ever fought in our history. In fact, it would be more preferable to be invaded by an identifiable foreign army than what we are going through now. For at least with a foreign adversary, the people know what they are fighting and can be galvanized in unison. But the enemy within hides in stealth and works by deceiving and dividing the people.

- A strong America answers all foreign challenges

For though we may have many challenges and significant external enemies, these cannot defeat a strong America grounded and unified by her highest values. Only with the aid of those disloyal to our own country could a foreign enemy be a threat.

- Foreign adversaries take advantage of a weakened America

Even our foreign adversaries are more than aware of how we have lost our way and are being controlled by un-American elements and rogue actors in high places, which in turn makes America not only ineffectual in intervening and stemming global conflicts, but opens America up to further attacks from those very conflicts. In fact, they can articulate and enumerate the reality of America's decline and compromised position better than many of our own leaders and media members – many of whom are unwilling to speak the truth. Despotic and corrupt regimes know their own patterns and are the first to spot similar despotic and corrupt patterns in other countries.

Therefore, having found aid, comfort, and encouragement in all the weakness and corruption that is so unmistakably on display in our country, our enemies now have the opportunity and motivation to exploit America and her legitimate interests around the world at every turn. Additionally, we are losing credibility with our allies, as their confidence in our ability to remain viable partners with them is quickly evaporating, while our ability to even govern and protect ourselves is in serious doubt. Russia-Ukraine, China-Taiwan, Israel-Hamas, and other brewing conflicts are all the result of the extreme compromised position that America now finds herself in.

Multiple Sub Wars, Multiple Crises

The war on America is comprised of many sub-wars and sub-crises, each having its own severe consequences, and each needing its own expert evaluation.

The following list highlights some of the sub-wars of the overall war on America:

- 1) The war on faith, religion, and spirituality
- 2) The war on truth and reality
- 3) The war on reason, independent thought, rationality, common sense, and intellectual honesty
- 4) The war on God's order for life, as outlined in Genesis (sex, gender, marriage)
- 5) The war on manhood, womanhood, and natural roles
- 6) The war on children, parental rights, and the family structure
- 7) The war on racial unity and true equality
- 8) The war on language and the proper use of words
- 9) The war on the Constitution and the democratic processes
- 10) The war on patriotism, American values, and presentation of history
- 11) The war on natural rights and freedoms (especially speech, expression, and association)
- 12) The war on small towns, suburbs, and local jurisdiction
- 13) The war on privacy
- 14) The war on law, order, and justice
- 15) The war on the right to self-defense, police, and public safety
- 16) The war on legal immigration, the border, and national security
- 17) The war on education
- 18) The war on small farms and agriculture
- 19) The war on self-determination for corporations and institutions
- 20) The war on the economy, cash, free enterprise, and private ownership
- 21) The war on the middle class, small businesses, and cash
- 22) The war on goodness and beauty
- 23) The war on creative freedom in the arts and entertainment
- 24) The war on nature, health freedom, bodily autonomy, and natural living

Basically, anything that is good, normal, and advancing of freedom is under attack.

One Root Cause: Lawlessness

At the root of all the many crises and battles that comprise the war on America is lawlessness. Lawlessness, in its widest application, is all behavior and activity that exists outside of life and opposes the laws of life. This lawlessness is denoted by the advancement of tyranny against freedom, corruption against purity, lies against truth, and disorder against order. It represents a total disregard for God, human happiness, welfare, and prosperity, and can therefore only result in the ruination of our way of life and in the oppressing of the people - exactly as is happening in America and in the west today.

- Dysfunctional: Moving from one crisis and lawless act to another without solving the first

Over the last several years we have run blindly from one disaster, manufactured crisis, and lawless act to another without pausing long enough to figure out these events were not only easily avoidable, but were also all interrelated, sprung from one another, and have many common contributing factors and players. They have all bled into one another and have created the greatest epidemic of cognitive dissonance, mental impairment, and psychological exhaustion among the people in the history of our country. Worse still, the false narrative that supported many of them have been left in place without thorough evisceration, thereby guaranteeing that these lies (and their consequences) will only grow stronger and resurface in more virulent forms.

The Context Of The War On America

The context of the war on America must be seen in the greater context of the war on humanity and freedom. The patterns of increased consolidation of power and authoritarian rule across the globe could not be more clear: from western governments defying their own constitutions and oppressing their own people, to power being ceded to global governing bodies, to control mechanisms being put in place through undemocratic means, to the unnatural influences of “elites” on the running of societies, to big tech cross-censorship, the evidence is abundant. The lock-step response to the pandemic featuring worldwide shutdowns, coerced vaccination, and uniform control of information to the public is but one prime example.

The Goal Of The Attack On America

If there is a greater war on humanity and freedom than that war must go through America, because America represents the first real experiment in history in enlightened democracy. If America fails to protect itself and falls, tyranny can rein across the whole face of the earth unchecked. This is why the moment in history that we are in is so crucial to understand.

The spirit of America has always been at enmity with the spirit of tyranny. And likewise America has always stood in opposition to authoritative governments and provided a stark contrast to those governments for the people of the world to witness and be inspired by for their own quest of freedom.

Therefore, the goal of any attack on America has always been to do whatever degree possible to alter, weaken, or bring down the country, and ultimately to submit it to some form of “new order” and globalist agenda.

- The same spirit of tyranny in history is at work in America

There is nothing new under the sun in terms of evil agendas, only new manifestations of these agendas. What is happening in America emanates from the same dark, unnatural spirit and desire that has been at work in evil or misguided leaders and movements throughout history.

Identified by various names throughout history, and envisioned by a whole assortment of false visionaries, tyrants, megalomaniacs, or so-called “elite leaders”, there have always been movements or individuals that have attempted to control people at mass levels. (This does not refer to the positive leaders or movements that have changed their societies through rightful and inspirational means).

These individuals or groups, whether well-intentioned, evil intentioned, or a combination of both, have never had, nor have now, any real experiential idea of what they are doing or where they are going.

Because of this, along with the fact that they have not sought true wisdom nor followed God’s will, they can only create the kind of multi-front calamity and suffering that we are now only partially starting to suffer here, but that history has witnessed the full bloody, horrific effects of countless times. Furthermore, in their twisted quest for power, they use a whole portion of the population – i.e. unsuspecting individuals, those who can be bought and sold, and an assortment of “useful idiots” who have been manipulated to do their bidding.

This authoritarian spirit comes from a desire to take rulership over humanity (forcefully if necessary) and crush its soul. It may start out as a friendly, positive voice, but ultimately it is cold, cruel, wicked, mendacious, and anti-human. Basically, it is an attempt to supplant the Creator and become God, and even rage against God himself.

And history clearly illustrates, through the tens of millions of individuals that have lived the singular, tragic reality of life under advancing authoritarian rule that the end results are always the same – brutality, pain, suffering, and loss of freedom and life. In fact, the greatest destroyer of human life throughout the 20th century was by far authoritative government.

One may refer to Marxism, socialism, communism, fascism, globalism, and even now – woke-ism, etc., but ultimately it is all the same thing – despotic authoritarianism and tyranny ushered in through lawlessness.

It is instructive to remember that throughout history, in many instances, even the most notoriously evil leaders and movements did not generally start out the way they ended up, nor was there always an original intention for them to commit the atrocities that they eventually committed.

Likewise, no despotic takeover announces itself as such in the beginning, no tyrant has ever called himself a tyrant, and no authoritarian government lays out its plans before the people - nor do they know their own plans at first. All of this unfolds in the absence of resistance. This happens gradually, but once it gets a foothold it advances quickly and wreaks havoc exponentially – with each inhuman act setting the stage for the next inhuman act of greater proportion and consequence.

How America Is Being Brought Down

In order to bring a great country down from within, and specifically in order to bring America down with her deep enlightenment and Christian infrastructure, there must first be a breaking down of that which made her great to begin with. This centers on (as noted) altering or shattering her essential foundations and core values.

How this is done:

1. Start by dividing, enfeebling, overwhelming, gaslighting, dumbing down, brainwashing, and demoralizing the people with a cadre of lies, onerous and absurd laws, persecution of truth tellers, and a whole assortment of devious and maniacal schemes.
2. Strip away the American identity, distort her history, and devalue the ideals of the nation.
3. Institute weak or corrupt leadership.
4. Normalize immorality in general, corrupt the morals of the youth, spread degeneracy, and deemphasize character.
5. Weaken the military.
6. Control the flow of information, censor speech, create an organized, uniform propaganda machine through the media, big tech, and other institutions, and simultaneously silence, attack, and punish all opposition in order to create a stranglehold on what is permitted to reach the people. (For if the thoughts of the people can be controlled, so can their actions be controlled, and therefore they can be induced to do things that they otherwise would not do).
7. Create an irrational social climate through intimidation and cancellation so as to make the people more compliant to the demands of tyrants.
8. Corrupt the election process through any number of means.
9. Allow for weak or corrupt leadership, and in non-elected offices install a combination of controlled, corrupt, incompetent, or deviant individuals in positions of authority so as to create a grip of control on the most important positions within society. (See crisis of leadership).
10. Control the justice system so that justice is perverted, the truth is deemed to "have no standing", the righteous are given no fair hearing, the innocent are declared guilty, and the guilty are declared innocent.
11. Create a socialist/communist condition in which the people depend on the government rather than on themselves.
12. Disorient and demoralize the people by changing the rules and creating alternate realities that do not actually exist.

13. Alter language, discourage independent thought, change the basic definitions of words, and rewrite history in order to disassociate a people from their heritage, in order to breakdown their ability to identify with that which is sound, connecting, and strong.
14. Debase society and ruin culture in order to make existence less positive, less enjoyable, and less inspiring of life, freedom, and beauty.
15. Incite violence, empower criminals, incentivize law breaking, create anarchy and chaos in the streets, disable the police from protecting the people, limit the ability for the people to protect themselves, their businesses and their families in order to create anarchy and destabilization in society.
16. Purposely open the borders and allow millions of illegal immigrants to flood the country in order to imbalance both the demographics and the cultural value system... as well as subvert the legal, beneficial immigration system.
17. Remove the intellectual, philosophical and spiritual understanding of life, scramble the thinking of young people, and institute a bankrupt philosophy.

Where We Are Now (see also Appendix D)

America is at the crossroads, and the literal survival of our nation is on the line. It is not untrue to say that we the people have temporarily lost control of our country. This is not an over statement, it is a matter of pragmatic fact - so deep and widespread have the seeds of our complete demise been planted into the soil and fabric of our total society over recent decades – and especially in the last few years. We are now on the brink of disaster on many fronts – including politically, economically, militarily, socially, and in all manners related to our infrastructure of supply chains, power grid, preparedness, etc.

Where we are now as a nation compared to where we have been throughout our history is so astonishingly different and devolved across so many sectors of society that it can scarcely be considered the same country. In fact, in terms of the expression of freedom, truth, creativity, and normality, our country is unrecognizable from what it was even just a short while ago.

Great nations that collapse do so in stages and by degrees, and have many clear indicators and predictors all along the way – including the relative silence and impotence of many otherwise good people and leaders. History indicates that America is somewhere in the middle stages of a collapse and take over.

In every direction we have come near to the end of the road – and have been driven by mad men and neophytes to the brink of disaster in many realms. All of this, along with the fact that we are a mere 90 seconds away from midnight on the doomsday clock to a nuclear conflict, clearly and categorically instruct us that unless we return to the ways of God, truth, and constitutional freedom, this country and our way of life as we know it, will be finished.

How We Got Here

- The consequences of lawlessness unchallenged

How have we gotten to the point where America's very future and way of life are in imminent danger, and the nation has essentially been sold out by the individuals, offices, agencies, and institutions that were supposed to safeguard her?

In reality, America has been under attack for decades and now that attack is at its most extreme, acute, and intense level. But as bad as the attack has been, and is, it is the lack of adequate response to it from a large segment of the population and political and cultural leaders across the board that has caused the most damage and brought our country to the decisive and devastating juncture of where we now are.

Ultimately, we the people have allowed all this to happen. Coinciding with the attempted dismantling of our nation over the last several decades is a moral and inspirational decline of the people.

It has been a combination of mass propaganda, a lazy populace, corrupt and dishonest media members and outlets, and weak, ineffectual, or corrupt political and civic leaders that have either passively allowed, or actively engineered, all of this to happen. If one were to examine any of the number of crises or egregious ways that we are now suffering today, they would find that each had a precedent (or several precedents) yesterday that was not dealt with sufficiently at the time.

The result is that with each abuse of power; with each dishonest media reporting; with each false narrative peddled; with each act of canceling, censoring, and de-platforming of truth tellers; and with each proof of fraud denied, the nation has been dismantled brick by brick and the people continuously and progressively dismayed.

In short, with each act of lawlessness that is ignored, unopposed, and unpunished, the stage is set for the next level of lawlessness to emerge in all areas. And this is exactly why we are in positions that would have literally been unimaginable to previous generations of Americans – it has been allowed step by step, event by event, lie by lie, dereliction of duty by dereliction of duty, and major wrongdoing by major wrongdoing, thereby forcing a constant adjustment of our common life to “new normals” that are progressively more dysfunctional, corrupt, bizarre, and repressive.

- The consequences of lawlessness unchallenged

The greatest mistake made by both the American people and our leaders is the willingness to allow lies and lawless acts to pass on without actually and thoroughly addressing them. Instead of becoming laser focused and aggressively evaluating, rejecting, and eradicating lawless activity and manufactured crises (as well as holding those responsible accountable), we passively accept these on some level, learn to live with the very lawlessness that we should have never tolerated in the first place, all the while pretending to maintain our hold on normality and excellence.

When the kind of lawlessness, corruption, and wrong doing that we have seen in America is not dealt with accordingly, the foundation of that lawlessness only grows stronger and is set up to do greater harm to the people and the country, while the perpetrators are given free course to strike again in more virulent and diverse forms.

The miscalculation that evil and wrong doing will somehow reverse themselves, will have no long-term consequences, or won't increase in intensity, depravity, and detriment to society over time is, in reality, the exact opposite of what will and what has already happened, and is the cause of so many of our problems today. Furthermore, the belief that all the wrong thinking and false ideas that have been embedded in our youth will not come back to haunt us is equally fallacious.

The result is a downward cycling at every turn, as normality, excellence, and creativity is progressively lost and society adjusts to lower and lower degrees of enlightenment and common sense, and levels of standards. Eventually, the people forget who they once were and become so enfeebled, so uninspired, and so dumbed down that they no longer strive for greatness, and will no longer have the will or capability to achieve happiness or defend themselves.

The Insanity Of What We Have Gone Through (And Are Going Through)

- The common experience of good people
- Impact on the people
- The occurrence of mass psychosis and mass delusion

Because of the limitations to the human mind, it is literally impossible for any individual to grasp just how utterly insane, wrong, backwards, bizarre, and imbalanced things have gotten in recent years, months, and even days in America. It is also impossible for any individual to hold in their mind at once all the different elements of madness - it is not just one thing, it is seemingly everything and happening simultaneously at all times.

We have gone through more insanity, chaos, corruption, manufactured crises, and undermining events in the last several years – that are continuous to this very hour - than in our nation's entire history combined.

If one were to realize all the different ways in which the core structures of our national life and values have been undermined, one would be utterly astonished at the length and breadth of all that we have gone through as a people and a country. In near immediate succession, a series of events and changes to our way of life so bizarre have occurred, that if we hadn't lived through them they would not be believed to be true.

In fact, if one were to lay out side by side each harmful event, each lie told by the media, each attempt to gaslight the American people, each profound act against the sensibilities of a nation, they would stretch across the entire nation and take years to unravel.

One would not even know where to begin, or in what realm (social, political, moral, etc.) to begin in. For what is more insane – that millions of illegal immigrants have been allowed into our country, or that males have been allowed into women’s locker rooms at the high school and collegiate levels under false pretense, or the criminals are allowed to walk into stores and steal virtually at will, or a whole host of other activities that would literally be impossible to occur in a sane nation? - yet they are undeniably occurring in ours.

- The common experience of good people

Literally tens of millions of Americans are all going through the exact same horrific experience of living through a dystopian time where extreme evil and perversion is ripping through the land at an accelerating pace and tearing down the country. These good people have had to endure the brutality and banality of acts of malice, degeneracy, and extortion across every front of American life.

While we understand that something beyond our emotional and cognitive comprehension is happening, we have no real understanding in terms of the depth of the horrific nature of what is actually happening to us in real time.

While this nightmarish existence has been experienced by the masses throughout history and the world, obviously never before have Americans experienced the systematic takeover and destruction of their own country.

Human nature is slow to recognize and respond to the dangers of incremental changes in longstanding foundations, traditions, and laws. But the truth is, the rules that we depend on for anticipating our future and calibrating our course of life are changing dramatically, making it difficult or impossible for a dynamic, independent, and creative individual to thrive.

Our people are traumatized on a daily basis. All of us who are awake are questioning the sanity of the world and are in continual disbelief as to what we are seeing.

All who are aware express the same disbelief, anger, and sorrow. All are witnessing the same baffling shift in personality and day to day change of values in many people they know, as these individuals are now espousing any number of insane concepts that they never had before in their entire lives – part of which constitutes some of the most insane concepts ever imagined in human history. All know that the world has been turned upside down, where now good is called evil and evil is called good.

- Impact on the people

Having to adjust on a daily basis to massive negative changes in essential systems and society is inestimably stressful and harmful to the health of the whole person – mentally, physically, socially, and spiritually, the therefore will contribute to the down grading of our collective quality of life.

- The occurrence of mass psychosis and mass delusion

It can be said that a society has fallen into mass psychosis when a critical number of its members believe falsehoods to a great enough degree that it causes them to act against their own enlightened self-interest – no matter how much evidence is available to counter those falsehoods.

Except for the insanity itself, what is most incomprehensible to those who understand what is happening in this world, is that there are still those who don't. It is a remarkable occurrence – one that will be studied many years from now – that so many millions in the country haven't yet figured out not only what is happening right in front of them, but also what is happening to them.

In this, we are also living in the twilight zone of dual reality, where half the country has fallen into delusion and believes virtually every set of lies and false narratives told to them, and is still remarkably in denial or in the dark. In fact, they are forging their own chains link-by-link and day-by-day by ignoring events that clearly cannot be ignored, and by supporting the very powers that are destroying this country and taking away their most basic rights.

These same individuals have shown a stunning inability and/or unwillingness to see things as they really are and to think critically, to question, and to make meaningful connections. They have allowed themselves to be told what to think and what not to think, who to listen to and who not to listen to. They have also shown an astonishing incapability and/or unwillingness to engage in meaningful dialogue, adjust to new information, and accept essential facts when presented to them.

Additionally, they have been so conditioned and so willing to trust the wrong sources that, no matter how many times those sources have misled them or outright lied to them, they continue to trust them. When the ruling powers do enough things that clearly do not promote the general welfare of the country, there can be no way that we the people can flourish, because the conditions within that society are aligned against that flourishing.

One of the most common errors of human nature that has been made throughout human history is to “side” with the perceived dominant power of a society, even if that power is an evil and dark one. Evil rulers and movements throughout history would have been stopped in the early stages of takeover and brutality had the people and the leaders of society acted prior to those evil rulers and movements gaining enough power and momentum.

The good news is that many are waking up, questioning the narratives that they have been told, doing their own research, and are becoming strong allies in the quest for health, freedom, and truth.

Where We Are Heading / Projection For America

- Preventing violence, conflicts, and civil disunion (or civil war)

It should be obvious to any clear thinking individual that the things that are happening in our country are entirely unsupportable and unsustainable. It is with one hundred percent certainty that a day of reckoning must come, and indeed that day is fast approaching and is poised to be devastating beyond what anyone can imagine.

Where we are heading is exactly where we are being warned not to head. The strongest, clearest, and most often repeated common warning from those among us who came legally from Venezuela, North Korea, Iran, Haiti, Cuba, Russia, China, etc., is that the very thing that they fled from in their own country is now occurring in ours.

The projection for America (and the West) according to all precedence of history, spiritual law, natural law, basic knowledge, common sense, and the principle of causality is one of ruin, collapse, and subjugation.

The cold hard truth is this: the events taking place in our country today can only lead to a type of breakdown and communist style takeover resulting in devastation and extreme civil strife, disunion, balkanization, and potentially some form of a second civil war, all of which will lead to pain, misery, and suffering for millions of people, unless a sweeping course correction is made. Therefore, in all rationality, it is more reasonable to expect that these things should occur than they should not.

When a nation is allowed to decline in the rapid succession that ours has been allowed to decline, when our leading institutions and agencies in government, health, education, and the media are no longer trusted by the majority of Americans, when first principles are jettisoned for nonsense, and when the truth is no longer valued as the absolute standard by which to govern from and inform the people by, then it is sure that increasing conflicts will arise within society and increase in severity to the point that institutional collapse will occur.

- Preventing violence, conflicts, and civil disunion (or civil war)

Good and wise leaders understand that the first and best way to prevent violence and escalation of civil unrest is to not incite them in the first place, but rather to act decisively to prevent them. And that begins by not provoking the people and making their life burdensome or impossible with oppressive laws and unrighteous standards. It must be understood that no true totalitarian/authoritative agenda has ever been accomplished without the use of force and violence.

This is because the very nature of all authoritative movements - whether Marxist, Communist, or Fascist - is heartless, soulless, and anti-human.

Therefore, totalitarian control cannot be accomplished without first imposing power over the lives and freedom of the people. This occurs through a succession of steps that begins with the targeting of those who are the greatest threat to their totalitarian agenda, and continues with the progressive widening of that targeting, dividing society, dehumanizing certain groups of people, and criminalizing certain protected speech and normal behaviors found in enlightened democracies...ultimately resulting in violence against the people.

The progression that history clearly exemplifies begins with propaganda, false narratives and gaslighting to advanced levels of the same, to false accusation, bearing false witness, false criminal charges, to coercion, forced confessions, removal of civil liberties, to selective imprisonment, to sweeping imprisonments, and then finally to political assassinations, and lastly to mass executions. In America, it should be chilling that all of this has already occurred except for the last phases.

It should also be obvious that you can push good people only so far and expose them to just so much abuse, utter lies, distortions, and things entirely alien and threatening to their way of life before a breaking point is reached.

A Warning To Those Who Are Destroying America

- The hierarchy of evil ensures self-destruction
- Things will spiral out of control
- Who are the "they"?

Essentially, there are three groups of people who are participating in the destruction of our country – and a fourth group who is not.

1. Those who are originating and actively promoting agendas that are oppressing human life and undermining our country.
2. Those who are advancing un-American agendas by allowing their influence/platforms/businesses/schools to be promoting, on some level, wrongful agenda (corporations going woke, colleges mandating Covid vaccines mandates, etc.).
3. Those who are going along with those agendas without questioning, speaking out, or resisting on some level. They say nothing and do nothing, but rather comply with the general understanding of things.
4. A fourth group stands in sharp contrast – they actively reject, speak out, and resist all false agendas and refuse to participate on any level.

As far as the first group, those who think they can oppose God in the basics of human life and destroy the foundations of our country, and that they themselves will come out unscathed are, as history's many examples prove, delusional.

In fact, never have leaders or agents who have exercised unrighteous power over the people in their day been judged by history with anything but abject contempt, and with very rare exception have unrighteous tyrants ever lived out their own time in peace and health. In one way or another, sooner or later – not to mention the judgment in the afterlife – those who thought they were protected while doing wrong found out that their evil covering was only temporary, and that they were being used by powers greater than themselves.

As far as the second and third groups, those who think that good can come from complicity with evil are also delusional. The very evil that they believe they can blend in with will eventually find them as well, and the unprincipled individuals that they are trying to appease will eventually turn on them, just as they did on their fellow citizens who originally stood against them.

- The hierarchy of evil ensures self-destruction

In the hierarchy of evil, it is essential to understand that at the top of the hierarchy are what the Bible refers to as “principalities and powers, and spiritual hosts of wickedness in heavenly places”, which simply means that man is subjected to being used and oppressed by powers greater than himself when he participates in the sort of grand scale evil that we see today. Therefore, it is impossible to escape the consequences of their actions, save from turning to God.

My plea to any of these individuals is to immediately turn back before they find themselves entirely trapped in an ill-fated endeavor in which they will most certainly pay the price for. It is not too late for a change to occur, even for the most hardened or deceived person. And for those who have been cowardly, knowing that what is going on around them is wrong, but have said or done nothing, they can gain courage and conviction to do the right thing now.

- Things will spiral out of control

Many hard and unpredictable things are sure to occur when evil tries to overthrow righteousness, and even those who think they are in control of the decline now, will find themselves powerless to stop the events that will be happening around them. They will find that the events they believed they were in control of will become out of their control, and in due time destroy them as well. And all of this can happen very, very quickly.

- Who are the “they”?

While referring to “they” sounds conspiratorial, it is no more a matter than understanding who and what constitutes the ruling powers that are exerting influence and changing dynamics, and controlling things both out in the open and behind the scenes in society, in ways that may not be readily understood or recognized by the average person. In this, we can say that the “they” in America and the West are made up of many entities and individuals that overlap and coordinate in highly organized ways, loosely organized ways, and sometimes disorganized ways. Therefore, it is more of a matter of a confederacy that moves together in loose association before it coalesces into what appears to be a single entity – but never quite achieves that structure for long, as “there is no honor among thieves.”

Our Leadership And Governance Crisis Summed Up

- Unity must be based on first principles

- Without moral authority, our government lacks true authority

No greater detriment to society is there than poor, unprincipled, corrupt, or incompetent leadership. It is critical to understand that virtually all of the major problems in our country have been unnecessarily (if not maniacally) self-inflicted; they have resulted from a high percentage of our leaders departing from first principles, moral absolutes, rational thought, honest standards, and common law. It has been a combination of malfeasance, incompetence, and cowardice that has caused so much to go wrong. But as problematic and vexing as things have become, the reality is that all of these problems have accessible spiritual and natural solutions that wisdom and truth would readily reveal and remedy.

Therefore, our crisis of leadership in politics and governance (and civic institutions) can be summed up in one over-arching reality: our leaders, on the whole, are more politically minded than they are spiritually minded. They are more concerned with self-preservation than they are with the people’s preservation. They are more loyal to the wrong political or social agendas that are set before them than they are to the truth, the right understanding of life, and the overall good of the people. They are more interested in retaining useless power than in being great. They are more versed in the art of politics than they are in saving the nation. They are more astute in strategizing than they are in straightforward righteousness, the Constitution, and the Scriptures. In short, they simply do not put God first, nor comprehend the reality of the battle of good vs. evil that is ongoing before them. Fortunately for the country, there are those who do, and these shine like stars in the sky.

Coinciding with this, there are two sub-realities that are differently expressed in the two parties that need to be reconciled:

1. The Democratic Party: With all that can be clearly witnessed, it is impossible to deny the terribly sad, tragic, and lethal reality that the Democratic Party has lost its way, has seemingly been entirely corrupted and taken over by a variety of nefarious, dishonest, and morally bankrupt forces, and is now controlled by those no longer acting in the best interest of the country. The reality is that many good Democrat leaders of yesterday would never be welcomed in their own party today. Those many would-be good leaders in the party, who inwardly disapprove of what is happening, have remained silent, while others have left the party altogether. The exact same thing can be said of the corporate media and its members. (see appendix)

2. The Republican Party: Though the party still sincerely purports to put the nation and the American people first, it has, with many notable exceptions, failed to definitively, forcefully, expediently, and comprehensively respond to the attacks against our republic. Additionally, when the Republicans are in power, they notoriously fail to govern with true vigor, determination, and heart and soul – thereby squandering the very momentum and advantage that they just gained.

- Unity must be based on first principles

It is important to understand that it wasn't long ago that the two parties were closely aligned in values, vision, and loyalty to the country.

Many people talk about the need for unity in Washington. However, there can be no unity where there is no agreement according to first principles. So long as one party predominates in un-American activity, unity (the kind that is actually beneficial to Americans) will be, and should be, impossible. Therefore, the first need in Washington is not unity, the first need is virtue followed by courage and conviction, and governing by truth and first principles.

- Without moral authority our government lacks true authority

Nothing makes America more vulnerable to foreign adversaries, domestic troubles, and a multitude of disasters than does a morally compromised, corrupt government at home.

When a government's behaviors confirm rather than contradict the suspicion and mistrust of a growing number of citizens, it is sure that the government has lost its way and is indeed engaging in corruption. Furthermore, any leader (whether political or civic) who at this point of crisis does not put our nation and its moral, spiritual, and inspirational principles first, has no business being in leadership.

Without moral authority, our government lacks the very first thing that substantiates it to the people – and that is the authenticity and truth-bearing strength to be believed and trusted in the areas that matter most to the people, and that is their wholeness and wellness. In America our government lives or dies and rises and falls on the founding principle of virtue. Furthermore, without moral authority we have no business engaging in foreign wars, as we can actually make ourselves far more open to attack on the back end. This is because the protection that moral authority would afford has been moved out from under us.

It is an established reality at the time of this writing that our government, and this present administration, has lost not only the trust of a large percentage of the American people, but also much of its legitimacy and standing in the world as a force for moral good.

Governments that do not root out dishonesty, corruption, and despotism from within their own ranks, or that promote immorality and lawlessness, have not the power, nor the support of enlightened people, nor the backing of the Almighty to be in leadership in their own nation, let alone to be in a position of world leadership and effect positive outcomes for the people or those of other nations.

If we do not protect and promote our constitution, common law, and our Judeo-Christian heritage and values, then we cannot impart to other nations the blessings, freedoms, and inspiration which that heritage has given to us.

If our own media is controlled by the government, then we have no standing to criticize the state run media of despotic nations.

If we do not put the needs of our own country first, we have no business tending to the needs of other countries.

If we allow our own constitutional, legal, and justice systems to be undermined, we cannot promote true democracy in other countries.

If we cannot protect the rights of our own citizens from authoritarian abuse of power, we cannot protect the rights of citizens around the world.

If we do not protect the rights of our own children from the propaganda targeting them, then we have no right to pretend that we care about the plight of children in other countries.

If we deny protected freedoms to Americans (such as free speech, etc.), then we have no freedoms to offer others.

If we allow rigged or unsecured elections in our own country, we should expect other nations to follow suit and allow rogue governments to emerge.

If we do not secure our own border, we have no business trying to secure the border of Ukraine or that of other countries.

If we weaken our own military, we have no business strengthening the militaries of other nations.

PART 2

The Way Forward And The Way To Victory

The way back rests primarily with the people. When the good people of this country reach deep enough within themselves and into the power of God, a mighty shaking will occur, and we will have the power and clarity of vision to bring sanity, light, and truth to our nation. When the moral and spiritual crisis is reversed, and truth and righteousness restored, so too will all other crises be reversed.

Therefore, the way forward is the way toward life, health, and prosperity. It is the opposite direction of the way that we have been going, and it begins by restoring the moral, spiritual, and intellectual ground that has been lost in recent years, while simultaneously restoring the freedoms and rights of the people, and honoring God in all the fundamentals.

For without first restoring these essentials – which is the only secure ground there is to walk on - all else is lost and all other efforts are wasted. Even if we were to win the election, our leaders will prove to be ineffectual when it matters the most - as those who are destroying America don't play by the rules and will literally do anything, at any time, to exert their influence, and don't necessarily need to be in political power (though that is obviously the most straightforward vehicle), they just have to be in position to undermine whoever is in power... and then wait to seize power again as we have already seen happen very clearly.

It must be remembered that in 2016 Republicans controlled all three branches of government. Four short years later, all three branches were lost, and we are now worse off than ever in our entire history. Why is this? This is because when Republicans had power, they failed to execute according to what was actually required to save the country, and thereby failed in fulfilling their calling to the country. The point is that it is not enough to simply win an election, one must also be a dynamic force once in office, and be ready to take on all threats against our republic – if they are going to have a net positive effect.

What Now Must Be Done (overview)

The time for mere politics is over. We have all clearly witnessed the utter uselessness of ineffectual politicians (including so-called “RINOs” and those democrats who have allowed their party to be taken over), who have no true vision, urgency, or power to carry out what is necessary for the nation or the people.

What is needed now is an entirely new style of leader and leadership – one that exemplifies true excellence, guts, courage, passion, vision, urgency, determination, faith, and above all else, a relentless pursuit of what is good, true, and beneficial for the country and the people. The leaders are representatives of the people and should see themselves as standing for the people and the people's good. Therefore, our leaders need to make a stand now worthy of their position and worthy of the country.

It cannot be emphasized enough that because of the level of evil, mass deception and attacks against our country, leaders (and existing office holders) must go to the highest level and the highest authority for their vision, courage, wisdom, and power to overcome all of this, and take on the awesome responsibility of governance and leadership.

I would encourage any individual or leader who truly feels called to leadership in America to understand that this is their great destiny, and helping to save our country is the glory that is set before them. In truth, any candidate or leader who is not willing to enter into this realm must either become strengthened to do so, or they should do themselves and the country a favor and step aside and support someone who is willing to do this. This is not a personal attack, it is a matter of reality.

Essential Things All America First And Great Leaders Must Do Now

1. Become spiritually empowered

Any leader who does not have God in his life is a leader who will ultimately fail America, their office, and the people. This is because the evil that we face has simply grown too great and wide to even attempt to take on without the power of God. But with the power of God, everything changes.

Therefore, the single most important thing that any leader who is truly serious about saving our country can do is to immediately go directly to God, lay out their entire heart, soul, and mind before Him, and have opened all the potential good that can be accomplished if they were to really follow God's plan and purpose for this country, and the life, liberty, and happiness of the people.

This one act is more powerful and effectual than all the lesser acts in the world – no matter how seemingly important these appear to be. It is what separates one leader from another leader who will not do the same. Without God, it is highly unlikely, if not impossible, that leaders will do the essential things to keep the country or what is necessary to bring justice for the American people. This is because, at critical points, when the pressure gets too great, they will be sure to fail for lack of courage, wisdom, and strength. It will be proven that the moment a leader steps out of the realm of power, is the moment that he or she seizes to be effectual for the nation and the people.

If these leaders would only be determined to follow out the fullness of their own faiths (the vast majority of whom claim to be Christian and/or support our Judeo-Christian heritage) and seek truth and the will of God in each and every circumstance, the cabal against this country would be brought down, and we would not only return to the standard of previous greatness and security that we enjoyed, but also far exceed them in new ways. From this one reality comes all the answers.

2. Lead from a holistic position

We are in a battle over the soul of our country and the freedom of our people. It is a battle of good versus evil, and therefore it is more of a spiritual battle and a total battle more than it is any other kind of battle. And one cannot fight a total battle with political tactics only – which is the exact mistake that most politicians (even the best) overwhelmingly make, because they fail to discern where true power comes from. The governance of the country must be attacked from a holistic position. A leader in the world today can only be effective if he brings to bear all of the mental, emotional, physical, spiritual, creative, and intellectual resources that are available.

3. Insist on a strong America

America can only be as strong as her foundations are strong and intact. A strong, spiritually fit, intellectually sound, morally just, and internally united America is the greatest bulwark against all forms of despotism, corruption, and intrusion – whether foreign or domestic. In contrast, a weak, unfit, and internally compromised America generates many severe self-inflicting problems, undermines its own citizens, invites foreign aggression, and is set up to be easily overwhelmed and overtaken.

4. Restore the trust and confidence in the Republican Party that has been lost

The average conservative minded person – which makes up a broad swath of the American people, and includes Republicans, Independents, and moderate Democrats (who would vote Republican under the right circumstances) – has little to no confidence that the majority of established Republican leaders will fight for the American people and the country if things get too difficult. This reputation has been well earned by the countless examples of where Republicans and good Democrats have faltered at critical moments, as the American people have watched the aforementioned destruction of our country with such little relative resistance being offered in real time. They have also watched clear corruption and evil go unexposed and unpunished over and over and over again. It is not that these leaders have done nothing, it is that time after time they have not done what a particular situation demands.

This total lack of confidence has created a certain apathy, indifference, and even disgust with that which has caused millions and millions of ordinary people to disengage from the political process, which translates into a withdrawing of support on all levels from the Republican Party.

For example, given the state and stance of the Democratic Party, Republicans – notwithstanding the recent rigging in our broken election systems – should win virtually every election in a landslide, and should have won the midterm elections by a massive landslide. But instead, because Republicans failed to bring the battle to the fore strongly enough (as well as expose what happened with the 2020 presidential election), they have not won where they should have won. Additionally, by every rational metric by which an election should be determined, the 2024 presidential election should be an overwhelming, massive landslide of historic proportions, but is now poised to be a close election. (See appendix A)

5. Recognize and comprehend the desperate times that we are now living, and respond accordingly

What worked even 10 years ago in terms of mindset and intensity level has not worked and will fail today. Many leaders are way behind the curve of the desperate reality of the situation that we are in, and as such, are greatly failing to act accordingly. Along with living in a post truth world – where the truth is no longer the arbiter of what society is anchored by in many cases – we are also living in a post political world, where it is now about good vs. evil and the survival of a nation. Leaders must adjust to the desperate situation we are in now and dramatically increase their intensity level in order to be any match for the dark forces coming against them, the country, and the people. Those who will not adjust are destined to be left behind and forgotten by history.

In order to find their footing in the midst of the chaos, leaders should simply ask themselves: “what would the great leaders throughout American history do and say if they saw the same destruction of America in their time that we see in ours?” The answer to an honest heart and self-enlightened mind would be one that shakes the very foundation of the individual and galvanizes him to great action that is virtually unknown today.

6. Be courageous

Every leader, indeed every American, is going to be tested as to where they stand in the light of truth. They are going to be tested as to whether they will bend to tyrannical pressure or stiffen against it in the multitude of ways that this pressure is being manifested. They are either going to support or go against the basic tenets of God and the values of this country.

The broad, positive-neutral, political, and social ground that good people from diverse backgrounds were able to occupy in peace and security throughout generations of Americas is being taken away by those who oppose basic life principles and common sense, while demanding forced unnatural allegiance to radical agendas.

The average American is seemingly forced with the utterly impossible task of continually having to adjust to “new normals” and “new values” (which are anything but normal or good), thereby placing them in a constant state of turmoil and internal conflict. The once steady, reliable environment in which we all centered our lives and values on, and which was built over generations, is being replaced with absurdities and atrocities by those who built nothing lasting or good, and who care nothing for stability.

Because of the extreme pressures being exerted on this nation and the people by unholy forces over the last number of years, every leader is going to have to realize that without a new level of courage it will be impossible to be the right leader in this day. But with the correct level of courage – along with the other qualities and talents needed – they can effect true greatness.

7. Be bold, go on offense

“The wicked flee when no one pursues, but the righteous are as bold as a lion.”

Nothing can be more important than saving our nation from the powers that are trying to destroy it. It is astonishing how often especially Republican leaders, but moderate Democrats as well, have been put on defense with the myriad of degenerate tactics of the Left and other entities. It seems that many good leaders, both Republican and Democrat, are so easily able to be intimidated and caused to back down or reverse course.

So often, all that is has taken is enough pressure to be brought to bear on those leaders to surrender their positions. It is also astonishing how often they have fallen for the same insane maneuverings and tactics over and over again. With every capitulation to one of these tactics, the perpetrators grow in boldness, abandonment, and callousness. It is time to end, once and for all, the one-way attack system of the Left.

8. Be relentless and effective in investigating and following through on the number of scandals, abuses of power, and acts of corruption

As noted, we are in the state that we are in because our leaders have allowed so much evil and un-American activity to go unaddressed and unpunished in any real way.

It is telling that if one were to ask conservative minded people whether they believed anything will come of the promised investigations, nine out of ten will tell you that they have no expectation whatsoever that anything effectual will happen – this is how accustomed the public has become to the failings of so many other investigations that have failed to produce what a functional oversight system should produce. In fact, in past investigations, despite the mother load of corruption and wrongdoing being in plain view, somehow these went without consequence. That fact alone is proof of a collapsing and corrupted system.

Yet, it is in fully exposing before the American people all the catastrophic and terrible wrong that has been done to this country, and then putting a definitive end to it that actually constitutes protecting our nation. In other words, the very thing that has absolutely not been done to the right degree is what needs to be done now. If Republican and other leaders fail to do this, nothing else they do will be of any real value. Therefore, it comes down to a new relentless mentality that does not cease until it gets the results commensurate with the need.

America First leaders must not be intimidated into not following through in doing what is right. For example, the recent claim that if he were to win, President Trump would act like Hitler and go on a “revenge tour” of his political opponents is nothing more than an attempt to put him and Republicans back on their heels, and preempt them from doing what they need to do in the realms of justice for the damage that has been done to the country and the injuries that have been inflicted on the people.

9. Be fully prepared to defend the 2024 presidential election

No rational person who cares about the country and election integrity can expect that the 2024 presidential election can be a clean and fair one when the malfeasance of the 2020 presidential election has been entirely ignored.

10. Expose the rigging and malfeasance of the 2020 election (see also appendix A on the election)

To the degree that something is damaging to the country, is to the degree that it should be investigated. The thing that has been most avoided is the very thing that now needs to be most addressed. And the very thing that has done the most damage to our country is the very thing that has been the most censored, least examined, and least accounted for. This has proven to be a tragedy of historic significance.

Because of the exponential damage done to America and the world as a result of allowing the false results of 2020 election to stand without challenge, four things will be made clear in the light of history:

- 1) The total spectrum of corruption associated with the 2020 presidential election (before, during, and after) will make the “stealing” of that election the greatest singular political crime in American history.
- 2) The lie that the 2020 presidential election was fair and free of any considerable malfeasance, and that it met the highest standards of election integrity that are expected by the American people, and should be displayed in an enlightened society – fairness, accuracy, unbroken chain of custody of ballots, strict adherence to procedures and laws – will go down as the single biggest lie in American political history.

3) The as of now continual failure to fully investigate and expose the American people and the world as to what happened in that election will go down as the greatest systemic dereliction of duty in American history.

4) The lack of direct response and rebuttal in real time on the part of most Republican leaders and conservative media outlets to the continual (seemingly daily) claim on the part of Democrats and mainstream media that the 2020 election was wholly legitimate and free of fraud, will be seen as one of the most abhorrent displays of weakness in American history.

In light of these realities, the 2020 Presidential election should be among the very top priorities for both the house and the senate to fully investigate and hold comprehensive hearings on it, according to their full abilities, regardless of objections or factors of time.

The fact is that the narrative of the 2020 presidential election was free and clear of fraud, malfeasance, and interference has been the narrative that has been used as cover to do enormous amounts of damage to the country and to create a platform to persecute those who exercise legitimate constitutional rights of inquiry and to initiate enormous amounts of disruption and attacks against our nation.

Much hype was given to the January 6th commission, which was not a commission seeking the truth, but rather a commission seeking an agenda. What we need is a November 3rd commission to once and for all get to the bottom of the reality of what happened in the 2020 presidential election, which will shine a light on why January 6th even occurred in the first place.

The reason why a full investigation, still to this very day, needs to be done is:

1. The life, honor, and importance of both the country and the presidency demand that the truth about what really happened (before, during, and after) the election be known and told.

2. The consequences of that election are so inestimably catastrophic to the nation (and to the world) on so many levels that to ignore it is to ignore the most severe, blatant, and egregious political crime ever committed in American history.

3. Those consequences are continuous and exponentially damaging to this very hour. So aggressive is the nature of those who hold the ill-gotten and wrongly authorized power, and so maniacally insane are the actions against this country by those in power, that every day that it is pretended that the 2020 presidential election was legitimate according to all standards of election integrity is a day that we further lose our country. Additionally, our leaders - even the best of them - lose credibility for not speaking out against something so patently and devastating to the country.

4. The obvious and easily provable lie of “no election fraud” is being used against the truth itself, against honest and knowledgeable American citizens, and against the very ability to defend this nation from an ever-growing cabal and the ever-increasing despotism, both of which have been strengthened and empowered by that lie.

If the full truth were to be told and known about what really happened in and around the 2020 presidential election, those who are destroying our nation would lose both their cover of legitimacy and ability to continue to do so. The cabal would be ended in no time.

All of this comes down to something very fundamental: any Republican leader (or for that matter, any Democrat or Independent who cares about the future of our country) who is unwilling, at the very least, to look into and tell the truth about the fullness of what happened in the 2020 presidential election, is part of the problem and not part of the solution, and in fact is aiding and abetting the takedown of this country.

11. Leaders must specifically and purposely choose who they will be and what side they are on

It is a misnomer to say that our government or people are merely divided in the traditional sense between Republicans and Democrats – with somewhat different ideas and ideologies, but essentially all still being American in essence and working for a common cause. The truth is our country has been beaten into a much deeper form of lethal dissection due to the aforementioned mass intimidation and mass propaganda. This means that the new dividing line is no longer between nuanced, informed differences of opinion, but rather between basic truth and falsehood. This dichotomy is exemplified by those who have submitted to (and are controlled by) rank propaganda, and those who have remained true. Therefore, if our leaders (including those in the conservative media) don't lay the correct foundation for the truth, that dissection will grow worse.

And as the lawlessness and pressure created by false narratives increases, American leaders will fall into one of two categories: those who govern according to the will of God, and those who do not; those who put the holistic needs of the American people and country first, and those who do not; those who will be courageous and true, and those who will not; those who fundamentally side with the Constitution, and those who do not.

12. Lay the foundation of truth, establish the truth

Without truth at the foundation of a country, it is impossible to govern effectively or have a healthy society. Propaganda and a whole cadre of false narratives have been generated by a variety of leftist groups (not the true liberals) and others. These have warped the minds of millions of Americans (especially young people) and turned the truth inside out, putting truth tellers on the defensive and liars on the offensive. Ultimately, violence is bred from lies, false ideologies, and the warped minds that these produce. As Voltaire said: “Anyone who can make you believe absurdities can make you commit atrocities.”

The single biggest mistake that has been made in navigating the war on America is threefold:

1. Not aggressively destroying every lie when it is told by any source that is bringing down our country.

2. Leaving in place false narratives, including those that have seemingly run their course. Every false narrative that is not uprooted and replaced with the truth will continue to poison the people and do damage to the nation.
3. Leaving wrongdoing and corruption unpunished.

13. Re-establish true justice: End malicious prosecution and abuse of the justice system

A clear pattern of abuse of power has been established in America, therefore true justice has to be re-established. Malicious prosecution, political prosecution, unwarranted raids and overuse of force, and all other misuses and abuses of the legal, law enforcement, and justice systems must come to an immediate end in America, never to be witnessed again.

Our way of life and the bonds that hold society together both demand and depend on a predictable, stable, enlightened, fair and equitable total system of law and justice that the vast majority of good, informed Americans can trust to a high degree. Without this, no society can ever be free or healthy. In fact, the loss of control of the justice system to political thugs and tyrants is one of the leading indicators of authoritative takeover of nations.

There has been a clear unmistakable chilling pattern of abuse of power in America complete with the use of intimidation, coerced plea deals, manipulation and expanding of laws to create crimes, a two tiered justice system, an unequal application of the law, and more over the last several years that has accelerated at a rate that ensures terrible consequences unlike like anything we have seen in America before.

One of the leading indicators of corruption and rogue behavior within any government is when the very systems that are meant to protect society and the rights of people are turned upside down and become the very problem that they were meant to ensure against. Every single abuse of power, case of unequal justice, and wrongful or malicious prosecution must be thoroughly examined, and restitution made to the victims, including Page, Giuliani, Navarro, Trump, Flynn, Stone, Bannon, non violent J6 prisoners, and all American citizens who were also unjustly targeted.

14. Know the tactics of the hard left and stand against them

“By any means necessary“ means that the Left has given themselves permission to do anything necessary to get the outcome that they believe will serve their agenda. This means that they will do the same things that communists have done throughout history to those who oppose them in order to manipulate and intimidate – gaslight, lie, sloganize, bear false witness, call you a racist, a sexist, excuse violence, etc., and worse still.

15. Do the right thing first

The most common mistake Republican leaders make – and we saw this clearly after the 2020 presidential election – is to let fear, rationalization, and “pragmatism“ dictate their course of action, instead of what is the morally right and correct thing to do in the moment. To be a leader and to effect goodness, receive honor, and be true, one must be willing to put everything on the line in order to lead with the truth; one cannot determine when to do or when not to do the right thing based on possible consequences of doing what is right.

Instead of simply relying on God and boldly standing in what is right as the only true option, they blink and consider other options in order to evade the “consequences” – real or imagined – of doing that right thing. But what they fail to take into account is that by not doing the right thing, they have by default done the wrong thing, missed the moment in history, and placed themselves and the country in no man’s land. “Salt is good” Jesus said, “but if salt loses its savor, it is then good for nothing but to be cast out, and trampled under foot of men”. It would be well advised for leaders to adhere to this admonishment in order to avoid that very dynamic.

16. Call things what they are

In fact, it is the lack of this understanding and/or inability, or reluctance, on the part of many of even our best and most conservative leaders and media outlets to readily state this in clear terms, that is part of the problem. What is needed is an unambiguous warning that our country is in clear danger on many fronts, as has been numerated in this writing.

Leaders need to call the evil, degeneracy, tyranny, betrayal, and treason that is happening directly in front of them exactly what they are. When leaders and citizens don’t call things what they are, they find a way to rational them and live that which they should in no way live with – it is our responsibility to know what is going on in our country and to deal with it.

17. Men need to step up

Few things are more needed in America than for men to step up and take on their natural roles as leaders. Without strong male leadership, no country can ever be stable or reach anywhere near its potential.

Today, we have so feminized culture and confused gender roles that we have come to believe male and females are interchangeable when it comes to holding key positions in leadership. They never have been, never will be, and are not now.

This in no way takes away anything from the many excellent, strong women that we have in leadership (the number of conservative, smart, dedicated, and competent woman is amazing), but it is to say that those women cannot make up for the absence of good, strong male leaders. In fact, if too much burden or emphasis is put on woman to lead, they become less effective in their natural roles, and there is an aggregate loss to society.

Additionally, in the absence of strong men in leadership positions – despite having good and strong women in place – evil men will fill the void and create enormous stress, pain, and damage to society. Also, the woke ideology of placing women in leadership positions simply because they are women leads to nothing but chaos and dysfunction.

Therefore, it needs to be understood and recognized that without strong men in positions of leadership, all people will suffer - especially women and children.

18. End all unconstitutional surveillance of Americans

The surveillance of American citizens under any pretense - with the exception of absolute legitimate security issues - is as un-American and unconstitutional as anything else we can imagine. This includes any form of a medical registry similar to what was attempted to be put in place with the Covid vaccine passport, which fell under the weight of its own corruption.

19. Keep cash legal / prevent a cashless society

A cashless society is a backward and draconian society. The attempt to remove cash transactions is one of the leading signs of the end of freedom - as it brings us one step closer to the communist social credit system where normal citizens are controlled at every level by the whims of an unrighteous government.

20. End all DEI requirements in governance

Diversity, equity, and inclusion are great American concepts when they are understood in their proper context, but when they are prioritized and substituted for competency and excellence, they become weaponized instruments and vehicles for pathology in society - there's no place in the running of our government that replaces merit and quality for wokeness.

21. End the endless support of foreign wars / keep America sovereign

Many of the wars and conflicts that we support, as well as the unwise entanglements and treaties with foreign nations, and arrangements with global organizations that actually undermine American sovereignty, could have been avoided with good, wise American leadership.

America's legitimate interests suffer when the military industrial complex is not kept in check, or when politicians who do not put our country first cede American authority to other entities. Every dollar spent in a foreign conflict must be for the true, valid security of America. Every relationship with a global entity must put America first. Whatever is done for the genuine humanitarian needs around the world, must not take away from the humanitarian crisis that we have in our own country.

Additionally, our leaders must never submit America to any foreign or "globalist" ruling body, such as the UN, WHO, etc. for any purpose, at anytime.

22. Clear the energy / Acknowledge mistakes / Spotlight where you can do better

Because our country has been so relentlessly attacked, and so many leaders in office (as well as the parties themselves) have failed or have fallen short in defending the country in so many ways, there needs to be a real clearing of the energy. By acknowledging mistakes and professing to be better in the future, great power is released and trust is renewed. This includes, as noted previously, the major events that brought so much pain to the American people.

23. Protect girls' and women's sports and associations (more on this in a separate writing)

24. Protect the health, innocence, and well being of children (more on this in a separate writing)

Appendix A: The 2020 Election And Its Connection To The 2024 Election / Future

No meaningful statement about the 2024 presidential election (or any significant election in America) can be complete without a reference to the disaster of the 2020 presidential election, because the 2024 election is directly linked to the 2020 election, and is an opportunity for justice to prevail.

There is perhaps no greater example of the devastating effects of the combination of fear, corruption, lack of wisdom, and dereliction of duty according to the spirit of American leadership than that which was displayed following the 2020 presidential election, in the utter failure to ensure that the results of that election were true. And there is no greater need, as it relates to the consequences of the election, than for those who have failed to fully investigate and report on the truth to do so now.

It was expected that the usual suspects involved in destroying our country would cover up what happened in the 2020 election. But when so many Republicans, honest Democrats, conservative media, and others who are allied with America and trusted to protect our country and report on the truth, failed to do just that by totally neglecting to expose the total spectrum of malfeasance and fraud clearly involved in the election, they did a horrendous and incalculable disservice to the American people and the country, the devastating effects of which we have been experiencing from that time to this very hour. All who failed the country in 2020 need to redeem themselves now in 2024. Therefore, the question must be asked: why should those who failed the country with protecting and reporting on any and all malfeasance in 2020 – especially the major media outlets - be trusted by the American people with the 2024 presidential election?

They not only failed to aggressively investigate, expose, and report on the fraud and the innumerable problems with the election during the critical time immediately following it, but have now gone (for the most part) completely silent on the matter for nearly four years. Of course, this does not include the five state hearings (which were truly outstanding and revealing), or a number of House and Senate Republicans who did indeed stand up in real time.

Moreover, Republicans and the conservative media have never given their constituents a reason for their silence on a matter so incredibly critical to the country. It is unconscionable that they have not leveled with the American people as to why they did not, and continue to not, show up in this vital battle. Such silence would normally indicate that they don't believe the obvious truth of election fraud, or don't care enough about the country or the people to report on it – both of which would ultimately disqualify them from being forces of truth. However, the larger reality appears to be that many good leaders and media members got overwhelmed and intimidated by the threat of lawsuits, etc., and did not act in their normal capacity. We can only hope that they may still come around and save their honor in this particular battle

This silence has essentially legitimized the lawlessness of the election. It has allowed the Democrats and media to take complete and total control over the narrative of the election by which they have created a total false reality about it (and January 6th), and have continuously bludgeoned the people and our nation with fabrication after fabrication (and held multiple absurd hearings) without, for the most part, the slightest resistance from the Republicans or conservative media. It has emboldened them to extend their attacks on Trump, Republicans, and millions of informed Americans, while strengthening that lie that the election was pure and legitimate.

The horrendous consequence of this silence can be witnessed by the boldness of the Democrats and their surrogates now going to the outer extremes of gaslighting the country by literally charging President Trump with the very thing they are guilty of - attempting to overturn the results of an election. All of this has served to tighten the stranglehold of power that was wrongfully gained, and made it more difficult to speak out on future cheating or malfeasance – which is sure to happen.

The strategy not to expose the fraud at all, but rather to bury it and simply wait for the next election has backfired massively. It has 1) encouraged cheating in future elections, 2) allowed four years of deep damage to be done to the country, 3) made what should be easily the greatest midterm sweep in American history by far, (both in numbers of victories and in the margins of those victories) closer than it ever should be, 4) empowered Democrats and the mainstream media to lie about the elections with impunity – which added to the midterm candidates (and to the Republican Party) the enormous burden of contending with the lie that the election was fair and free, and 5) opened millions of courageous Americans who spoke out (and are speaking out) about the election to suspicion and persecution, leaving them without cover from those whose job it is to cover them.

Instead of directing the attention of the American people to the central truth about the election, Republican politicians and conservative media have all but evaded that central truth, and instead focused endlessly on the effects of the rigged election without calling out the actual rigging itself. This is to forever chase the wind because it follows the same dysfunctional pattern of reacting to symptoms of a problem without ever getting to the cause of the problem - guaranteeing that that problem will continue unendingly until the root cause is addressed.

To detail the ever-present egregious events of the current administration without pointing out that this administration would never have gained power to create these events, but for a fraudulent election, is to be dishonest and disingenuous with the people. The integrity and solicitude of our election process can never be compromised for political purposes. Regardless of what one thinks about Trump, the reality is that if he were the president, we wouldn't be going through most of what we are going through, and many major crises would have been avoided.

The, as of now, conscious decision to not correctly address the clear rigging, fraud, irregularities, unconstitutional law changes, and so much more of the easily demonstrable malfeasance and chaos clearly associated with the 2020 presidential election will go down as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, moral, political, and strategic mistakes and failings in American history. But even now, there is still the opportunity to do the right thing and bring the truth to light.

For America can survive a rigged election (and a wrongful outcome), but it cannot survive lying about, covering up, or endlessly pretending that the rigging never happened. It can survive only if the truth is told to the American people, because at least the people would have a correct perspective of why we are experiencing so many of the bizarre crisis that we are experiencing, and there would be one less contributing factor to the massive divide in our country. From this knowledge, accurate steps to ensure that this never happens again can be taken with the enlightened consent of the majority of people. But it cannot survive (as in thrive again) if the truth is covered up, because then the root condition remains in place only to manifest again, whether in the exact same form or in a different form.

In summary, while we can say that Joe Biden was legitimately made president (because our system allowed the illegitimacies of the election to be ignore), we cannot say that he got there through the free and fair means expected by the American people - and therefore, there must be reconciliation with this reality.

The idea that he got eighty-one million entirely legitimate votes according to the highest standards of election integrity expected by the American people is ludicrous on its face. Not only do the American people deserve to know the whole truth about the 2020 presidential election (as well as January 6th), it is essential to the life and health of the country that the whole truth comes out. Because without the whole truth coming out, the lie that the election was entirely free and fair will live on to perpetually undermine our country, gash the people, and continue to do an incalculable amount of exponential collateral damage, just as it already has done. Additionally, what is absolutely needed in the future is a full, exhaustive, legislative investigation on both the election and January 6th. Republicans and conservative media must regain their authority and speak what is right about the election.

Appendix A / Part 2: Election Letters to the Supreme Court and Republican Leaders

(These letters were written in real time and provide further insight into the consequences of the 2020 election)

April 5, 2022

Dear Justices of the Supreme Court:

I am writing to you (and each supreme court justice) on three vitally important interrelated topics upon which the balance of our future as a nation and a people hang:

1. The critical need to finally address the fraud, malfeasance, and rigging associated with the 2020 US Presidential Election.
2. The protection of personal health and medical freedom in relation to Covid-19 mandates and especially mandated vaccinations – which is addressed as a separate statement and included with this letter.
3. The protection of first amendment rights.

I am also writing to encourage and support you in your crucial service to our country.

In this packet you will find 3 separate letters including: this current letter regarding the presidential election of 2020; a letter that I wrote to members of the US Senate dated February 8, 2021 (as a matter of reference); and a statement on Covid-19 mandates.

Overview:

By far and away, the greatest overall existential threat to our democracy is the unchecked tyranny that is now threatening everything from our elections to our first amendment rights, to our very ability to exist in society without proof of Covid-19 vaccination and other abusive mandates. Therefore, each Supreme Court Judge's legacy will be determined exactly by how they ruled against the rampant tyranny, fraud, suppression of the 1st Amendment, and injustice in their day.

The Presidential Election of 2020

“There was in a certain city a judge who did not fear God nor regard man. Now there was a widow in that city; and she came to him, saying, ‘Get justice for me from my adversary.’ And he would not for a while; but afterward he said within himself, ‘Though I do not fear God nor regard man, yet because this widow troubles me I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me.’”

Then the Lord said, “Hear what the unjust judge said. And shall God not avenge His own elect who cry out day and night to Him, though He bears long with them? I tell you that He will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless, when the Son of Man comes, will He really find faith on the earth?” –Luke 18:2-8

Background:

I've watched the persistent degradation and destruction of our country, our way of life, and our entire value system now for three decades by the same forces whose philosophy and means are openly antithetical to everything that our nation was founded upon. Things have gotten so progressively worse, especially in the last decade, that we have seen what can only be described as evil influences attempting to take down and take over our great nation.

So important is our country, the office of the presidency, and the need for quality leadership, that I created a website called strengththenation.com which outlines those critical areas, exhorts people of faith to pray and fast for the overall welfare of our nation and the rightful outcome of the election, and provides a whole range of valuable information on our nation's greatest needs.

Trump's Presidency and the Election:

Instead of competing against President Trump by developing a better America First platform and candidate base than he and the republicans had, democrats and others circumvented this natural competitive process and used nefarious methods to attempt to gain power. I, along with tens of millions of Americans, witnessed Donald Trump's presidency be treacherously undermined at every turn from the very start in ways unparalleled in American history. We observed early in the summer of 2020 the Covid-19 pandemic becoming a political weapon angled toward the presidential election in the fall, as election laws were subsequently brazenly and illegally changed in multiple swing states to allow for a massive mail-in ballot campaign. This unauthorized changing of protective laws essentially guaranteed the impossibility of a true and accurate election.

We then watched in stunned silence as the presidential election appeared to be stolen right before our very eyes on the night of November 3rd, and in the days and weeks that followed. When after the progression of constitutional steps failed to address the obvious problems and lawlessness with the election, we hoped that the Supreme Court would step in and effect justice. When the court failed to do this, dismay, anger, and frustration replaced hope – yet even still now, the truth remains and so does God's ultimate justice.

Where We Stand:

Every day that now passes reveals just how inestimably destructive it was to have essentially surrendered the 2020 presidential election to the forces that rigged it. From the insane crisis at the southern border (which in effect is the purposeful opening of our borders resulting in a floodgate of several millions of illegal aliens, drugs, and assorted bad actors to pour into the country); to the unconstitutional, unscientific push for compulsory vaccination upon threat; to the inexplicable Taliban takeover of Afghanistan; to critical regions in the world being destabilized; to being brought to the brink of World War III; to the almost total loss of trust in our intelligence agencies on the part of tens of millions of Americans; to the aggressive suppression of free speech; to the breakdown of virtually every indicator of law and order in our cities; to mass inflation across the board; to the obscene gas prices; to the severe supply chain disruption; to the entirely out of control spending and increase of our national debt by billions and trillions; to the media's increasing corruption and gas lighting of the American people; to the attempted dismantling of our voting and governance systems; to the continual moral decline; to an individual being nominated to the Supreme Court who wouldn't define what a woman is; and so much more – it is now clear that our nation is quickly spiraling out of all control.

It is now impossible to deny that the country is dramatically worse off holistically in ways that can scarcely be comprehended than it was just over a year ago – as the seeds of our total destruction and demise are being planted ever deeper economically, socially, morally, and politically by the day. Even the Supreme Court's very own survival is threatened by the lawlessness of the stated agenda to add judges to the Court, and thereby destroying the legitimacy of it.

Essential Questions That Future Generations Will Ask Surrounding the 2020 Presidential Election:

Once history has allowed for its lucid perspective to be gained on the 2020 presidential election and the subsequent comprehensive dismantling of our nation, future generations and historians are sure to ask themselves the same astonishing and bewildering questions that millions of Americans are asking themselves today:

1. How is it possible that the greatest nation on earth allowed its greatest election to be stolen?
2. How could any knowledgeable, honest or reasonable person in a position of authority, trust, and responsibility in the state or federal government, judicial system, or media possibly have gone along with the demonstratively false narrative of “no proof of election fraud” – which presupposes that the election was executed according to all standards of ethical and procedural integrity – when even a cursory review of the circumstantial and direct evidence makes it abundantly and obviously clear that the exact opposite was true, and that in fact there was an astonishing span of malfeasance that is easily verifiable?

3. How could a nation that works toward protecting the free and fair elections of some of the most corrupt nations on earth have failed to ensure that its own most important election was free and fair?

4. How is it possible that not one state or federal court actually held a functional hearing that allowed the abundance of evidence across multiple fields to be evaluated in real time?

5. How is it possible that key swing states allowed their election laws to be altered unconstitutionally just prior to the election in ways that guaranteed an insecure election, and assured that fraud would most certainly be committed?

6. How is it possible that more evidence of election malfeasance became quickly available than could even be readily reviewed, and yet went ignored by the media and our various oversight and intelligence agencies? This evidence includes, but is not limited to: dozens of hours of critical and compelling eye witness testimony, well over 1000 verifiable affidavits (not to mention thousands of more Americans who could also have testified of malfeasance), and damning videos of blatant election misconduct that were all presented in over six hearings in the key swing states.

7. How is it possible that not a single comprehensive functional investigation was launched into the total spectrum of election malfeasance of the 2020 presidential election? And for that matter, how was it possible that Mike Lindell, Dinesh D’Souza, and other private citizens were able to gather enormous amounts of evidence and present a far greater case to the American people than did the very institutions and agencies that were put in place to do that very thing?

8. How is it possible that a full investigation of the presidential election could have continued to have gone uninitiated for months (and to this very day) in the face of the obvious reality that if Donald Trump were the rightful president, the mounting daily catastrophes that we all clearly witnessed would not have occurred.

9. How is it possible that events of the Capital riot – a singular episode which lasted a few hours – received one hundred times more condemnation and attention from democratic leaders and the media than did the hundreds of riots of BLM/Antifa which lasted days, weeks, and months, and were astronomically more serious in every measure of destruction?

10. How could there have been such an obsession with January 6th on the part of certain lawmakers and the media, and such indifference to November 3rd, when in fact it was the egregiousness of the election that set the stage for the events of January 6th to have occurred in the first place? In other words, how could there possibly be a January 6th committee but not a November 3rd committee?

11. How is it possible that there could be political prisoners in America – how could such horrible, abusive, and totally unconstitutional treatment of certain January 6th protesters been allowed to happen on American soil?

12. How is it possible that every single oversight measure that was put into place through the wisdom of the constitution failed to achieve their purpose at every turn, and therefore enabled an election that was rife with malfeasance to produce the fraudulent results that were allowed to stand?

13. How is it possible that the Supreme Court, the highest court in the land, essentially made itself of no avail in ruling against the greatest political corruption scheme in American history – viz the 2020 presidential election?

14. How is it possible that we had the means to settle at least one aspect of the question of election malfeasance through forensic audits, which should have appealed to every honest and forthright person, yet these audits were met with the strongest opposition conceivable by those who claim that the election was the most secure in the history of our nation?

15. How did so few leaders in government, the private sector, and the media not have the will, courage, wisdom, and foresight to demand answers as to what really happened in the 2020 presidential election?

16. How is it possible that half the country allowed itself to be totally and utterly deceived for 3 years by the Russia collusion hoax – which represented the most elaborate, criminally corrupt political scheme against a president in American history – and then continue to trust the very same sources who deceived them to tell the truth about the 2020 Presidential election?

17. How is it possible that all the supposed bright and good leaders on both sides of the aisle could have calculated that it would end well for the country to allow a presidential election that was permeated with (at the very least) the appearance of rampant fraud and malfeasance to go undealt with?

18. How is it possible that the American people allowed big tech and the mainstream media to have interfered with any election, let alone the presidential election?

19. How is it possible that certain critical information and key reports (such as Hunter Biden's laptop) – which would have definitively impacted the vote – were denied or removed from the public forum?

20. Finally, how is it possible that the greatest nation in the history of the world, which prides itself on “truth, justice, and the American way”, allowed its presidential election to be rigged, defrauded, and abjectly stolen while allowing that rigging to remain continuously unaddressed at the highest level?

21. How is it possible that leaders on both sides of the aisle could not see that by allowing election fraud to stand in this election, credibility of all future major elections would be jeopardized?

The Failure of the Election:

As far as ensuring a truly fair election, with the exception of a few brave and heroic leaders throughout the state and federal government and judicial systems, our entire system and process of checks and balances and ethical and loyal governance failed in an unprecedented way.

Nature of the Failure:

It's not that evidence of election fraud and malfeasance is not there in abundance, it's that there was (and is) a concentrated unwillingness to look at that abundance of evidence that is clearly there. The nature of the failure to address and expose the rigging and fraud of the 2020 presidential election centered on simply denying and avoiding the whole issue of malfeasance however, whenever, and in whatsoever way possible.

Every entity of government, including the Supreme Court (with notable individual exception), avoided its sacred duty and responsibility by actively seeking some plausible way out – some loophole, some excuse, and some reason not to deal head on with what was obviously right before them, and which constituted one of the greatest undermining actions against our democracy in American history. By neglecting to fight the first great battle that was before them in real time, leaders ensured that they and America would be fighting a thousand unnecessary battles in the time to come.

The Reason for the Failure:

Only in the absence of enough strong leaders with that extra level of real courage, wisdom, conviction, moral centering, and strength from God could an election have been stolen right in front of the eyes of the American people and those of the entire world. As Edmund Burke said “The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing”.

The unfathomable brazen rigging of a presidential election placed tremendous stress and strain on the entire country, severely tested every leader (those both good and bad), and paralyzed many into inactivity and denial. Therefore, the reasons for the failure to take on the whole issue of election fraud and malfeasance were many and varied: on the one hand, there was fear, intimidation, confusion, ignorance, etc... and on the other hand, there was corruption, compromise, and complicity; and a lack of will, patriotism, and commitment.

Essentially, these reasons center on the reality that confronting a potential stealing of an election was just too overwhelming in the moment for the ordinary leader. So many good people were simply overmatched, outplayed, thrown, and uninformed as to the evidence, and as such, turned away from evaluating and investigating the evidence. They thereby caved into submission and acceptance of something so blatantly wrong on the most basic level of democracy. Ironically, had the total spectrum of malfeasance and fraud been lesser, the ease of dealing with them would have been greater.

What Happened vs. What Should Have Happened:

Instead of seeking what was truly right for the long-term good of this country and really getting to the truth of what happened in the 2020 presidential election, and then dealing with it in a manner that would have been worthy of a great nation, it is clear that the majority of individuals in leadership did not want to be involved with what was perceived to be too difficult and too daunting a responsibility, and one that had too much of a political price to pay.

Whether they really did not know the whole truth about what really happened in the election, or suspected what happened but didn't want to know, they acted against their own enlightened self-interests by choosing a false form of self-preservation over a true form of preserving the country – which is a miscalculation whose outcome guarantees its opposite objective, as the fall of the country guarantees the same fall of those who were supposed to be guarding it.

The result is that, at a time when the country needed key leaders to step up, those leaders stepped down; when they needed to be strong they became weak; when they needed to be courageous they became docile; and when they needed to be giants they became small. Despite this, I believe that every leader that came up short can now regain their rightful position and will have the opportunity to do so.

The Consequence of the Failure:

In short, when the presidential election was given away, so was a part of our country given away. In this evasion of responsibility, many leaders acted shortsightedly both for the nation and themselves, as their own families and posterity may well now suffer severe consequences for generations to come if this failure is not addressed and if there is not an overwhelming correction to the negative results of an administration that did not rightfully win the election. To think that the country would be better served by allowing the potential stealing of an election to go unaddressed was a severe miscalculation on the part of those leaders who were placed in positions to oversee election integrity.

For if one believes that a presidential election can be entirely undermined and yet the country can somehow return to normal without correcting that undermining, history emphatically tells us differently. And if one thinks that confronting election fraud is difficult and disruptive to the country, failing to confront that fraud and allowing it to stand is to sacrifice the entire nation to that fraud with the blind, non-existent chance that the consequences of doing so will somehow be less than the “consequences” of exposing and resisting that fraud.

Understandably, it was fear and intimidation driven into the minds of leaders that determined their inaction. But every lesson of history and every understanding of human nature and the course of human events teach us that appeasement, passivity, and apathy in dealing with the advance of some form of growing evil and injustice against a people or a country ends in disaster, and proves to be many times more problematic and disruptive to the people and to that nation than could even have initially be imagined – even to the point of potential severe subjugation, civil disunion, or annihilation.

The Supreme Court’s Failure:

When the Supreme Court fails to enact justice either by commission or omission in some essential area, the consequences are devastating. For example, in 2015 when the Court took on the case for gay marriage, it arrived at its decision without following any law or precedent whatsoever. In the process, it entirely ignored what the Scriptures clearly say about God’s moral order and plan for marriage – representing the first time the Supreme Court went directly against the Scriptures in a settled matter of morality, and in the process, literally changed an absolute and definitive definition. That decision opened wide the door for the chaos of “transgender rights”, which essentially has translated into the demand to change fundamental words in our language, for girls and women to be displaced by males having access to their bathrooms, locker-rooms, and sports; and for many other things that are not only unsustainable in society, but also degrading of society. The chaos and degradation is especially acutely felt in our school systems.

The Supreme Court’s failure in this past presidential election was particularly harrowing, damaging, and painful. For what hope can this nation have if its highest court – which is the guardian of the constitution and the ultimate ensurer of justice – fails to act in the most critical moment of our greatest election? In fact, by the court failing to act in the presidential election to the degree that the spirit of the constitution demanded of it, the precedent was set that the court could not necessarily be relied upon as a bulwark of justice if the stakes are too high.

When the Supreme Court declined to execute its just authority and operate in the clear sovereignty of its jurisdiction for the American people by repeatedly ignoring the cry to hear cases which would have allowed for the evidence of multiple illegalities and rigging surrounding the election to be submitted, the whole concept of a “supreme” ruling court was all but destroyed and confidence in the Court’s objectivity, independence, and ability to be absolute and resolute in effecting justice was diminished to near zero.

This is because the American people’s greatest aspiration regarding the Supreme Court is that the Court is truly the one final arbiter of truth and justice, and therefore it will act above and independent of all competing forces in selecting cases, evaluating evidence, applying the law, safeguarding the constitution, and effecting justice when no one else will or even can. When this great mechanism of justice is disabled, the final constitutional safeguard against injustice and tyranny is also disabled, and thereby removed.

Contrary to effecting justice, the Court's lack of strong action all but assured that justice was not afforded to President Trump, the Constitution, or the American people. Furthermore, the Court's pattern of avoidance in denying these court cases has been used as one of the leading "proofs" for the abjectly false and deceptive gas lighting narrative of "no evidence of election fraud" – a narrative that to this very day continues to pervert the truth from being known and prevent justice from being served.

How The Court Will Be Viewed:

As far as the 2020 presidential election specifically, because the court chose to abdicate itself from its major responsibility regarding the election, it unwittingly aligned itself with those individuals, entities, and elements that are destroying this country. And if the court does not reverse its resistant position in this (and other critical matters), it will be viewed through history's lens as one of the major contributing factors of what was the greatest political scandal in American history.

What Needs to Now Happen:

The evidence that the presidential election was rigged, interfered with, and stolen was clear enough in the minds of millions of Americans from the start. And now, with new irrefutable reports and proof that has come out in recent days, weeks, and months, it is all but impossible to deny those early signs and the initial evidence indicating that the election was manipulated. The Supreme Court needs to take a stake in the 2020 presidential election. For the sake of our country, the Court needs to take on the cases that may still come before it regarding the 2020 presidential election, or anything related to truly securing our elections in order to safeguard our nation.

As far as what constitutes the Court's true jurisdiction, it is the whole span of protecting the Constitution of the United States. Ultimately, what promotes the general welfare and supports truth, justice, and freedom is constitutional, and what does not promote these is unconstitutional.

Encouragement for You:

I want you to know that I believe the Supreme Court is an incredible institution, and that to be a member of it is a matter of honor that is unequalled in western civilization – so great and majestic are the responsibilities. I think that almost universally the general public vastly underestimates and under appreciates the true value of a good and wise judge, and the service he or she does to the country.

Our nation is in the throes of a battle for its very survival. The attempt to dismantle America as we know it comes from both internal and external forces, and literally effects everything related to our national life. Because of this, never has the need for the Supreme Court (and each Supreme Court Justice) to perform its role with honor, strength, acuity, and moral integrity been more utterly critical than now.

However, never has the Supreme Court been more politicized then it is now, never has it been called on to settle more cases of sweeping corruption, and therefore never have individual justices been under more intense pressure to do the bidding of those whose agendas have nothing to do with the comprehensive good of the country. And there is no question that it has never been more difficult and challenging to be a leader in any dimension of political or civic life than it is now, which is why the need to draw strength from the Almighty has never been greater.

I encourage you to lay hold of the singular responsibility that you have as a Supreme Court Judge with all your mind and soul – which is to ensure that real justice is effected according to the whole truth, the whole will of God, and for the whole good of America and the American people. This can only happen if you are mentally and spiritually grounded in God, know the Scriptures, and recognize your place and time in history.

If I can be of any assistance to you in anyway relevant to your service to our country please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Jay Etzel

Dear Senator:

“Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called children of God.” – Matthew 5:9

This is the fifth time I am writing to Republican Senators (as well as some Democrats) on the critical subject of the 2020 US presidential election and the overall health of our nation. The previous letters were dated November 5th, December 15th (sent to the Homeland Security & Government Affairs Committee), December 30th, and January 15th. I would be happy to provide hard or electronic copies of these, or you can view them at the website “Strengththenation.com”.

Each letter references the website that I created to strengthen the presidency and edify the nation. My motivation in writing to you again on this matter is out of pure concern for the country, and I have enormous respect for the Senate, and fully support its members, regardless of party affiliation. It is horrifying what has happened to this country, especially in the last decade (in terms of the overall breakdown), and it is saddening and sickening that our political leaders have either allowed it to happen or have taken part in what has happened (wittingly or unwittingly). My website strengththenation.com (which is referenced in each of the letters) will demonstrate my clear commitment to encouraging and inspiring a greater America and a stronger leadership base.

25 Summary Points

The central points and themes of my concerns about the 2020 presidential election (as expressed in the other writings) can be summarized in the following points:

- 1) The chaotic events surrounding the 2020 presidential election could only have happened within the greater context of the moral and spiritual crisis that our country has been in the midst of for years.
- 2) The left (as opposed to true Democrats), along with multiple complicit forces, has been demoralizing the American people by destroying our institutions, taking away basic freedoms, ignoring the scriptures on the basics of life, gender, sexuality, and marriage, inventing and weaponizing a whole line up of false narratives, and attacking our way of life progressively for years without any real consequences or enough effective counter measures on the part of our elected officials that we have entrusted to protect our nation.
- 3) The rigging of the 2020 presidential election (and the subsequent failure to deal with that rigging) was a blatant attempt to steal President Trump’s rightfully hard-earned second term, and represented the same malevolent and undermining behavior that was altogether clearly displayed every single day of his first term by many Democrats, media, and other operatives.
- 4) If true, the election fraud crisis of the 2020 presidential election represents both the greatest assault against our republic in its history, and the greatest injustice ever committed against the whole of the American people.
- 5) The election fraud scheme centered on using the pandemic as a guise to make last minute unconstitutional changes to election laws in key swing states, which allowed, in part, millions of ballots to be mailed out and subsequently “returned” without the ability to verify the proper chain of custody, setting the stage for a massive amount of illegal votes to be utilized.

6) The total spectrum of alleged law-breaking, malfeasance, irregularities, and fraud was manifested in a wide range of spectacularly corrupt activities that were witnessed by well over one thousand credible affiants and testimonies from a wide range of truth-tellers, whistleblowers, and others, including everyday Americans, poll watchers, UPS and postal drivers, election officials, observers, etc. These eyewitness accounts are entirely devastating to the narrative of the notion that there was no election fraud, as those accounts are so real, credible, and heartfelt that they are impossible to dismiss as anything other than authentic and truthful, and should be counted as such until and unless they are specifically proven otherwise.

7) The narrative of “no evidence of election fraud” is itself a fraud (in effect a fraud within a fraud), and is being used to further gaslight the American people and intimidate and silence anybody who would bring the painful reality of the truth of what really happened in the election to light.

8) The demonizing of those who venture to claim there was election fraud is nothing more than a tactic to distract attention away from where the real wrongdoing lies. Furthermore, this demonization is a severe evil that bears false witness against perfectly innocent and patriotic Americans who are using their common sense, their powers of reason, evaluating straight forward evidence, identifying statistical and data anomalies (if not impossibilities), exercising their absolute and unabridged right to question and freely speak out on political and social matters, defending their voting rights, protecting America according to the entire spirit of our founding and our constitution, and defending the nation against attacks from within and without.

9) The spurious “no evidence of election fraud” false narrative was peddled immediately by the media and the Democrats before there could be any intelligent and rational examination of the bizarre events that took place before, during, and after the night of November 3rd— and especially in the middle of the night. An actual accurate statement regarding election fraud would center on the fact that remarkably and inexplicably there has been no thorough evaluation of the overwhelming credible allegations of election irregularities and fraud by any court, federal body, or mainstream media outlet. In America, legitimate claims of injustice are investigated, and the victim of injustice is given “his day in court” as a primary legal means of defending himself. When this vital principle of American justice is denied, so also is true justice denied, and lawlessness is sanctioned. This is precisely what has happened on a scale unimaginable in the 2020 presidential election. Whether or not one believes that there was significant election fraud, the overwhelming broad-spectrum evidence combined with the gravity of the situation absolutely demanded, at the very least, a true hearing – yet that hearing never happened.

10) The secret of the effectiveness of the false claim of “no election fraud” lies in its absurdity: it is so devoid of reality that human nature is to assume that it is missing something when in fact it is not missing anything. Furthermore, the persistent falsehood perfectly illustrates Joseph Goebbels’ strategy for propaganda:

“If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it. The lie can be maintained only for such time as the State can shield the people from the political, economic, and/or military consequences of the lie. It thus becomes vitally important for the State to use all of its powers to repress dissent, for the truth is the mortal enemy of the lie, and thus by extension, the truth is the greatest enemy of the State”.

11) Every action that has been taken in mostly democrat-controlled precincts, both in leading up to the election and since, has been to all but guarantee that the election would indeed not be fair, accurate, and protected.

12) What is desperately needed in understanding why there are allegations of wide-spread election malfeasance, and what has thus far been entirely missing, is for one legislative body to investigate the entire sweep, survey, and summary of the massive attempt to undermine, interfere with, defraud, and steal the 2020 election. Every aspect of this attempt needs to be deeply and comprehensively evaluated and viewed in its whole context, rather than in its separate elements.

13) What has happened in the 2020 presidential election has happened, and is happening, on the Senate's watch. The Senate oath requires that senators defend the nation against enemies, foreign and domestic. Unless each senator (and the Senate as a whole) uses his or her influence to their fullest extent to expose this fraud and reverse its effects, those senators will become part of the problem rather than part of the solution. They will lose their moral authority and effectiveness for the future and find themselves on the wrong side of God and history.

14) By allowing a potentially illegitimate election to stand, many severe and devastatingly unintended consequences will occur, and could very well hit upon and undermine every aspect of life not only in America, but in the world as well.

15) To allow this comprehensive fraud to stand without exposing it is to court disaster, remove the blessing of God, and to essentially invite the same curse of illegitimacy on our land that has destroyed many nations when their politics are plagued by corruption.

16) It is an abject lie and pure nonsense that President Donald Trump incited violence of any kind, in any way, and at anytime on January 6th. Using the same standards that were used against him, it is rank hypocrisy for the Democrats and the media to speak of inciting violence when there are numerous actual examples of their speech having incited violence against the police, Republicans, and Trump supporters.

17) While the actual riotous activity at the Capitol is rightly condemned, the needed perspective is that what happened at the Capitol pales in comparison to what happens in other countries that get ripped in violence and discord from top to bottom when election fraud occurs or is strongly suspected to have occurred. And God forbid that we get pulled any further toward civil disunity because what happened at the Capitol will seem minor in comparison to what could happen, as history teaches us. Furthermore, what happened at the Capitol also doesn't come within a universe of the violence and anarchy committed by left wing mobs that was permitted to continue all summer long without denunciation from the same Democrats and media. Essentially, countries that are dominated by fraud are also countries that are dominated by oppression and violence.

18) It is impossible to make sense of the events at the Capitol without first making sense of the context in which those events took place. The extreme stress, pressure, and frustration that was experienced by tens of millions of Americans because of the evasiveness, censorship, and dysfunctionality in not addressing the obvious irregularities surrounding the entire spectacle of the election was that context in which the violence took place. And even in that, it must be noted that only a fraction of individuals were involved along with agent provocateurs who apparently incited the worst elements of it.

19) Using the terms "coup" and "insurrection" are pure word-cons that are only meant to distort reality, promote a false narrative, defame all "Trump supporters", and frame Trump in a phony impeachment. Actually, if there was any rigging of the election, that rigging would constitute a real "coup".

20) It is not good for the personal or spiritual health, or political legacy, of any leader to be silent on a matter of such importance as the presidential election. To leave any doubts in the minds of millions of Americans regarding the efficacy of the election is to only strengthen those doubts and create further division; and the longer the evasion continues, the greater the mistrust in our government agencies will become (which is now at historic highs).

21) Truth is relentless and God is not mocked. The truth about the presidential election is going to come out sooner or later.

22) Whenever there is an attempt to silence legitimate free speech, there is also an attempt to cover up some form of evil or wrongdoing, and the greater, more desperate, and more obvious the effort is to silence free speech, the greater is the evil or wrongdoing that is being covered up.

23) Many Republican leaders got completely outmaneuvered and intimidated into surrendering their voice and responsibility to speak out against the obvious election malfeasance. As a consequence, they lost the presidency and likely lost the Senate to the same type of fraud, as well as the trust of millions of members of their own base. Worse still, by siding with the “no evidence of election fraud” narrative, they essentially opened up those millions of good people to criticism and attacks as having supported a “conspiracy theory”.

24) Violence and civil disunion are best mitigated through excellence and truth in governance, and through the encouragement of vigorous debate and the free flow of information.

25) The more imbalanced our nation becomes, the more lawless society will become; the more oppressive our politics will be, the less freedom and creativity we will have.

What Actually Happened

Millions of Americans, including the media and politicians from every background, know exactly what they saw with their own eyes before they went to bed the night of November 3rd and woke up to the next morning: President Trump’s commanding lead in Georgia, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, etc., mysteriously vanished with no Republican poll watchers in attendance to verify that the votes were counted legitimately. This occurrence had all the signs of an alternate nefarious plan that involved simply waiting to see how many honest, true votes President Trump earned in those states in order to then determine how many votes were needed to be harvested from a bank of potentially hundreds of thousands of fake ballots, giving Joe Biden the lead once the fictitious votes were factored in.

The Injustice Committed Against the American People

The events surrounding the 2020 presidential election created the breakdown of the exact trust and belief in the honest representation that the entire concept of our country was founded upon. This is because the very foundations of virtue, truth, and fairness, which the people rely upon to hold our republic together, were dismissed and destroyed.

Specifically, the American people were led to believe that this presidential election, like all other presidential elections, would need to be won through hard work, extensive campaigning, and the kind of presence and energy that connects with the people and the soul of America. This winning of America can only be accomplished by beautifully and strongly appealing to the people’s values of patriotism, goodness, Judeo-Christian ethics, and love for what is right. President Trump actively embraced this connecting process during the campaign season, while his opponents essentially circumvented this process.

Donald Trump’s Presidency In Perspective

Only by understanding how far our nation had fallen in the recent years prior to President Trump’s election, can one understand why he was elected in the first place. If Donald Trump’s presidency were to be viewed in its proper context as an America first populist movement that both Republicans and Democrats have strongly advocated for in the past, then the attacks against Trump and the so-called “Trump Supporter” would be seen as the evil ruse that it really is. The truth is that the only reason Donald Trump ever gained support or increased in support over time is the same reason that any leader would (from either party) would have had similar support had they too resolutely and uncompromisingly simply tapped into the same array of fundamental American ideals, values, and spirit as did Donald Trump.

The tragedy of Donald Trump’s presidency is that so many politicians failed to support it, and the media entirely missed it, while they and other nefarious actors invented a false version of it. By working against Donald Trump, many in the political class and the media also worked against America, the American people, and even their own enlightened self-interest. They not only squandered the greatness that could have happened by working with President Trump when and where it was beneficial to do so (which was more often than not and covered a wide swath of common ground), but also set the country back enormously. Liking or disliking Donald Trump or any other president can never be the criteria of whether or not the truth will be followed.

Where We Stand Now

The extreme lie that our country is operating under is that the American people elected Joe Biden as president through a purely normal, legitimate, and unaltered process that met the highest standards of election integrity, and therefore by extension accepted, affirmed, and rewarded the left's radical agendas that drive the Democrat's platform and actions, which include: changing laws, suppressing free speech, tacitly (if not overtly) supporting mob rule, anarchy in the streets, tearing down historical monuments, propagandizing our children in the areas of gender and sexuality, inventing and changing language to alter reality, attacking religious liberty, ignoring and/or changing our constitution, advancing socialism and Marxism, and so much more.

In reality, the truth is the American people, by a wide margin, thoroughly reject these radical agendas and behaviors that they saw displayed in so many painful ways over the last few years and manifested in the demoralization of the American people, attacking many values that the nation holds dear, as well as undermining the institutions that have given America her greatness.

By allowing this administration to be installed in the manner that it was, our country has now been put in a complete crisis of truth, identity, and righteousness; and our entire national sense of justice and fairness has been compromised. By being told to accept the presidency of Joe Biden and his administration as wholly legitimate and accomplished without any rigging, malfeasance, or election insecurity, is to ask the American people to accept a lie against themselves, their fellow Americans, their country, and God himself. It is to ask them to believe that the lawlessness that they rejected four years earlier in a more mild form, has now been accepted in a more virulent form. It is to submit to a game of mass deception that can only end in complete disaster if we are not careful to deal with it. Accepting a presidency while knowing that there was fraud involved is one thing, but denying that there was any fraud involved at all is a whole other level of corruption and dysfunctionality.

What Can Now Be Expected

Every reasonable American from every political background can wholeheartedly agree that if the presidential election was indeed so rife with malfeasance as to literally alter the true outcome, then that election was indeed stolen. And if the election was stolen, then its results are totally fraudulent, the entire administration is, on a certain level, illegitimate and every day that this administration remains in power would also be illegitimate and in direct conflict with God and the will of the people. But, on the other hand, if the election was a truly legitimate one, then all Americans should get behind the administration for the good of the country. The following is a short list of events that can be expected to happen if things are not made right:

- Because of the sheer breaking of spiritual law that is represented in this election process, the American people can expect to go through some very difficult times. They can expect nothing but chaos, confusion, and an array of bewildering activity to take place on a seemingly continual daily basis in almost every realm of American political-social life as a result of the cascading effects of this administration.
- Because of the sense of illegitimacy, nothing is going to quite feel right, seem right, or be right, as a political dark cloud is going to be persistently hanging over the country.
- Because our entire nation is weakened and compromised, we can expect to see events in this country and in the world that could quickly spiral out of control in unpredictable and unforeseen ways.
- We can expect the moral compass of the far left (not the ordinary moderate Democrat) to become so further warped and deviating from our Judeo-Christian values that they will be able to justify any evil, insane, un-American, or unconstitutional behavior that no Democratic Party leadership would have justified in the past, and that no solid Democrat will now accept.
- Because of our loss of moral authority, we can expect a massive vacuum of power to occur in the world, and that vacuum, until it is sealed correctly, will create the occasion for undemocratic actors and threatening events to fill it.

- Because every aspect of legitimate civil freedoms, and especially religious freedoms, have been so under attack recently, we can expect America to become more unrecognizable than it has already become, and the American people to be further demoralized than they already are.
- We can expect America to become further divided than ever because it is impossible to become united under the vicious incivility, abject dishonesty, and undemocratic tactics that are now occurring with disturbing and increasing frequency.
- We can expect a massive disenchantment with both political parties, and a desire to see a third party arise.
- On the positive side of the equation, we can expect God to intervene in remarkable ways, and we can expect good people from every background to recognize the need to come together and get back to basics.

The very fact that our country is entertaining another entirely absurd and useless impeachment trial against President Trump, debating whether male athletes who claim to be females should compete in girls' and women's sports, and that there is a manic attempt to cancel, censor, silence, disenfranchise, and punish multiple conservative voices, demonstrates how extremely imbalanced and oppressive the forces are that are coming against our nation.

What Now Needs to Happen

Specifically:

- 1) The total spectrum of election malfeasance across the multiple fields needs to be properly evaluated and investigated once and for all, because the longer whatever election malfeasance there is that goes unaddressed, the more trouble it will eventually bring to the country.
- 2) The silencing, censoring, cancelling, and intimidating of those who are simply and legitimately exercising their God-given right to free speech and expression must come to an immediate and pronounced end.

Generally:

- 1) Our country desperately needs to get back to basics.
- 2) We must focus on strengthening our moral, spiritual, civic, and constitutional foundations.
- 3) We must become united according to our highest ethical, spiritual, and inspirational values instead of being divided by the lowest common denominator.

Every mature, good and strong leader in the Senate needs to lead in this process. If this does not happen dramatically and soon, we will not have a country left that we will still be able to call America.

If we as a people are willing to do the hard work of restoring righteousness, goodness, and inspiration back to America, we will have saved our nation not only for ourselves, but also for future generations. Through the grace of God we can make a quick and powerful comeback and restore complete order to our nation.

I am available to help you immediately, formally, or informally and in any capacity.

Sincerely Yours,

Jay Etzel

Appendix B: What The Democratic Party Needs To Do

A prominent liberal columnist noted in 2013 that “Today’s Democrat party – the home of Barack Obama, John Kerry, and Al Gore – wouldn’t give the time of day to a candidate like JFK”. What was true in 2013 would be exponentially true by a factor of 10 today. In fact, so deficient has the value structure of the Democratic Party become today, that it has driven millions of democrats and independents away from it.

The recent coordinated attempt by the Democrat party and the media to entirely malign, destroy, and cancel Robert F, Kennedy Jr., who is literally the very DNA of the philosophy of the old guard of the Democratic Party, could not provide a more stark proof of this reality. And Tulsi Gabbard, who just a couple of years ago was considered to be a rising star in the Democratic party, left the party because “it’s now under the complete control of an elitist cabal of warmongers driven by cowardly wokeness, racializing every issue, stoking anti-white racism, and actively working to undermine our God-given freedoms enshrined in our constitution.”

Additionally, there are many other both high profile and rank and file Democrats who have left the party because they could no longer support what the party was doing to the country and what it had become.

In order for Democrats and Republicans to work together for the good of America, the Democratic Party has to become an America First party again. It is self-evident that it is impossible for the two parties to work together for the good of the country if one of those parties has lost its mission. and thereby is working against the good of the country in so many core areas.

Therefore, the first priority of solid Democrat leaders is to clear out the darkness and corruption that has taken over their party. The same of course is true for Republicans, but the degree to which this needs to happen in the Democratic Party is dramatically greater. Wise Republicans would understand that it benefits them for Democrats to be sound and whole, just as wise Democrats would understand the same regarding Republicans.

As it stands now, and what has already been noted, the Democratic Party has all but entirely sold its soul for power and control, and in the process has abandoned the working class, aligned itself with values antithetical to our Judeo-Christian heritage, is no longer the antiwar party, aggressively uses identity politics to divide the country, attacks patriotic values, severely limits free speech and natural rights, is the architect of cancel culture, has increased our debt and spending to proportions that will break the economy, pushed imbalanced policies in the name of the environment, promoted agendas that will readily destroy any nation on the face of the earth – open borders, defunding the police, reparations, sex and gender propaganda among the youth, etc. - and so much more damning and degenerative actions and beliefs that can only bring harm and destructive to the nation.

Equally destructive, it has taken away so much of the good that Democrats have worked for throughout the decades. It has undermined many of the solid, traditional strengths and points of advocacy of classic liberalism and bedrock ideals of the old guard, traditional Democratic Party.

What needs to happen is that good, old school Democrats and classic liberals need to take back the party and restore it to its roots. It needs to become the party of the people and not the elites. It needs to win back the middle class and compete fairly with Republicans and others for the common good of the people. It needs to develop candidates that will reflect the vision of JFK for the nation, instead of the vision of the radical left, which will drive the country into oblivion. It needs to abandon all of its devious ways, and especially it needs to abandon the warped philosophies of “by any means necessary“ and “the ends justify the means.”

Appendix C: Truth And Justice Must be Re-established

A nation can neither build itself nor rebuild itself on a foundation of lies. Truth and justice must be re-established in every area of American life, if America is going to survive and thrive again. There should be no misunderstanding that the country cannot move forward in full terms without first reconciling a number of the most severe deceptions and destructive actions that have occurred in the last several years with the whole truth.

The reason for this is clear: we have so lost our way, have so allowed lies to dominate our cultural and political landscape, and have allowed so much evil to deeply institute itself into the national fabric to the point where truth and lies and good and evil are now almost indistinguishable from one another to so many millions of Americans.

In other words, we have drifted so far from the shore, that to drift any further is to all but guarantee that we will not never make it back. We are coming very close to the point of no return where the truth will simply not matter in any equation when it comes to determining people’s behaviors and actions. And when this happens, the only thing left is a world where it is every man for himself; a world without the goodness of humanity and the goodness of God to govern affairs.

We have become so accustomed to evil and lies dominating over the truth that soon even when the truth is clearly demonstrated it will not have an effect on either the people’s beliefs or their actions. And when the truth no longer matters, it is literally impossible to have a functional and healthy society. Such a society is fit only to be ruled by absolute tyrants and despots through brutality.

And as an aside, this is why it is absolutely essential to fully expose that which has caused the most damage to our nation, including everything related to Covid lockdowns and the 2020 presidential election.

Appendix D: Lost Control Of The Country

When so many things have been done at the federal level over the last several years that negatively impact the whole of the nation (and are coordinated with certain state and city governments), and that literally defy any ability to make sense of them - if one were actually trying to do the right and best thing for the country - then it is impossible to arrive at any other conclusion than the people and the good leaders of this country have temporarily lost control of a degree of the country.

It is as if we are watching a foreign invader come in and take over the country and we are all but powerless to do anything about it. There can be no greater proof of the loss of this control than the sheer, evil madness of the border, which has been purposely “open” now for nearly four years. The border represents the very first line of defense and security to any nation. In a rational world, and in a sane country, if even a few thousand illegal immigrants had been able to cross the border, one would surmise that those in charge are grossly incompetent at the least. But when millions, even up to twenty million, have been allowed to come into the country, including untold thousands flown into the interior of the country and given all manner of support, then it is impossible to deny that uncontrollable corruption and rogue elements are running things in America.

And what else can be said about other actions that defy all reason and that clearly not only failed to promote the general welfare of the country, but actually undermine the general welfare of our country. A long list could be provided, but everybody knows that the governance of our country is out of control and needs to be restored.

Appendix E: A Bankrupt Philosophy Bankrupts A Nation

A nation’s core belief system will determine its value system, which in turn will define its future. Ultimately, nothing that is happening in America in terms of destroying our way of life and establishing new aberrant norms and ways of thinking across a broad spectrum could have happened without first warping a high enough percent of the people’s minds in order to make these new norms acceptable to them. This means that the intellectual, philosophical, and spiritual ground of understanding of how life actually works had to be uprooted and replaced with deceptive concepts and ideas that sound theoretically correct to the untrained mind, but in fact, are antithetical to how life actually works.

Nothing is right, all is wrong with what they have been pushing on us.

Virtually everything that has been presented to, and forced upon, us by the power structures of the “cabal” goes completely against the light, truth, foundational principles, scriptures, and God’s plan for humanity.

So devoid of rooted truth and identifiable reality are the statements, thought processes, and justification for wrongful actions that come from certain prominent leaders and pundits related to the fundamentals of life and order of society, one would think that their minds had to have been entirely washed of any innate common sense or true learning of history, our nation, the scriptures, classical philosophy, and every other contributing factor to the rise of enlightened civilization.

In fact, neither America nor Western civilization itself could have been brought into existence if the same lack of rooted philosophy, sound wisdom, and positive Judeo-Christian values were also lacking at those critical moments in history. What is happening today – the utter disregard for truth, justice, and constitutional order, along with blatant tyrannical abuses of power and malicious activity, is exactly the opposite of everything that was required for the creation of America.

A society that hinders the common person from the ways of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness creates an environment in which good, self-motivated, and industrious people are no longer rewarded or welcomed. Such a society is not only entirely antithetical to the foundation of America, but to human life itself.

If those on the left and others who have gained power and influence today were tasked with winning a revolution and building America at that time, there would be literally no chance of them achieving it.

Appendix F: Just A Small Sampling Of What We Have Gone Through In Recent Years

On Trump alone we have seen illegal spying on his campaign in 2016; nearly 3 years of obsession on a totally fabricated Russia collusion hoax; incessant lies told about him, as well as 90% negative reporting on him by the media; his associates and family targeted; two bogus impeachments; a raid on his home; arrested and five times indicted; dozens of false charges brought against him carrying potentially decades of imprisonment; three assassination attempts; and more.

Beyond Trump, an encyclopedia could be written on the false narratives and oppressive measures associated with the pandemic, the BLM riots that ripped through the nation, a blatantly rigged 2020 election, the partial set up, incitement, and allowing of January 6th, a disastrous pullout of Afghanistan, record inflation, record high gas prices, spikes of crime and murder (in some cases record spikes) in democrat controlled cities, an open border that has allowed 15 to 20 million (and counting) illegal immigrants to flood our nation and overwhelm resources, an epidemic of methamphetamine overdoses, a series of world destabilizing foreign wars and conflicts, illegal and unconstitutional raids on and targeting of political opponents and American citizens, Soviet style imprisonments... and far more.

And when one considers how the corporate media — often in conjunction with the Democrats and others — control the attention of a large portion of the American public by steering it in spellbound fashion wherever it pleases, one understands the orchestration of it all. The end result of all that we are allowing to happen to this country is: whatever evil, lies, corruption and wrong doing that a society tolerates will be that which progressively controls them and ultimately destroys them.
