SAVE OUR NATION

by Jay Etzel

Core Truth: Despite all the confusion and lies, and the sense that, at times, all hell is breaking loose politically and socially in our day, the overarching reality that will bring peace is that no matter what happens, God wins at all times, the abundant life is continuous, and that "there is nothing hidden that will not be revealed". Luke 8:17

1. America has been the greatest and most glorious country in the history of the world, a true "city on a hill" whose greatness and survival now hang in the balance.

2. We are living in unprecedented times in terms of the comprehensive level of evil, degeneracy, lawlessness, mass deception, propaganda, and corruption that has been aggressively leveled against our nation, the American people, and humanity at large.

3. In recent years, there has been a continuous acute struggle for control of the country, and the whole nation has effectively been in a constant state of extreme toxic turmoil and agitation with scarcely even a single day's break in this period of assault to the senses and sensibilities of good men and women.

4. The lies that divide us now are the opposite of the truth that united us in the past. If Americans were more committed to the truth and the good of the country than to their ideology and political parties, we would have greater unity and power.

5. If good, reasonable, and open-minded people had the same information presented to them side by side in an unbiased and clear way, 90% of the anger, enmity, and animosity that now exists among fellow Americans would melt away very quickly. And everyone would know who and what is trying to divide us.

6. The events happening in America are happening openly and mirror and can be anticipated by the events happening in Europe and throughout the West, which have been further along in their decline. The same combination of ill-fated disparate groups, dark money, illiberal individuals, globalists, elites, false alliances, etc., is at work in both instances, acting against the good of the people and their history.

7. The greatest threat to America is the complacency of the people. This complacency has led to dysfunction, indifference, moral laxity, spiritual blindness, ignorance of events, weakness, and the allowance and acceptance of poor or wrong leadership, all of which set the stage for corruption and tyranny.

8. The second greatest threat to America is the enemy within, for he "hides in stealth", and has been attempting to systematically destroy every aspect of American life. Therefore, the first war to win is the war on America, and the first enemy to defeat is the enemy within.

9. Of this malinfluence, the people have been conned, played, and cowed on so many levels and in so many ways that it is virtually impossible to chronicle.

10. It is one of the great tragedies of our time that to this day so many decent and seemingly normal millions of Americans have little to no idea of the enemy within, the facts on many serious events, or the dangerous trends happening around them. All of which results in a loss of quality of life.

11. Leaders from virtually every institution - education, sports, entertainment, business, politics, etc. - acted uncharacteristically compared to anything they had done in the past. They allowed their organizations to be strong-armed and infiltrated, and themselves to be manipulated and coerced by aberrant pressures and malignant woke ideology, with the net effect of degrading and ruining both their own product and society at large.

12. We exist now in the tenuous and chilling space between falling back into the utter un-American despotism that characterized the immediate years leading up to the 2024 election and that of continuing to regain our country post-2024 election.

13. What determines whether we succeed or fail in saving and restoring our nation is entirely dependent on what happens from here. If the American people and their true leaders do not wake up in time to the reality of this critical moment and act precisely, wisely, effectively, and with decisive power, America as we know it may never come back.

14. Of first importance for America is to renew and reestablish the core of the country – its foundations, vision, values, freedoms, national life, and institutions, all of which have specifically been under attack. Without this, the country cannot be made whole again or move forward.

15. In reestablishing the core of the country, it is necessary to expose, undo, and rid the country of the wrongdoing, evil, and corruption that was responsible for damaging that core.

16. To the degree that in their official capacities republican and America First leaders from every background —including democrats — thoroughly investigate, expose, reverse, and bring to account all the illegal, corrupt, evil, destructive, and immoral actions against

America and the American people will be to the degree that they do their job and are great in their day. The converse is also true.

17. To date, this comprehensive, essential, lawful, and constitutionally mandated action has not happened nearly to the degree necessary to soundly root out the enemy within and thereby contributes significantly to setting the country fully back on course.

18. The continuous lack of national justice in key areas guarantees the continual destruction of the country, for it impacts everything. It leaves in place, legitimizes, and strengthens the very entities, operations, and agents responsible for that destruction, which the whole nation should have been able to see openly.

19. Hence, we have had much crime and wrongdoing against the country that is blatant and easily sourced, but precious little "conviction" of that crime and wrongdoing. This phenomenon fosters dangerous division, setting Americans against Americans, as many individuals are either unsure what to believe or believe the exact opposite of what is true in many areas.

20. There were certain major events (especially from 2020- 2024) that were so iniquitous and so great in terms of the sheer scope of the damage that they did to the country and the people that until they are reconciled and the whole truth is told about them, the country also cannot move forward or be made fully whole. These include the 2020 election, the COVID-19 deceptions, the opening of the southern border, and more.

21. In order for America's comeback to be entire and long-lasting instead of partial or transitory, there must be a continuity of that which would make that comeback possible.

22. This includes winning a critical mass of the people, ensuring a continuum of positive American leadership at every level (especially over the next election cycles), and generating a great enough amount of momentum that is sustained long enough to bring us sufficiently out of the dangerous place that we were just in. (At this time, we are not nearly there).

23. This is best done by gaining the people's trust through excellence, simplicity, transparency, directness, and every other right action stated in this writing, including having the American people made to fully understand the insanity and corruption that they were recently put through.

24. The need at this time to remain EXTREMELY focused, disciplined, and primary literally cannot be overemphasized. Anything that manifestly fails to directly contribute to "priority one" needs to be rejected. Anything that creates drama, needlessly distracts, or unduly absorbs the time and attention of the American people and our leaders undermines the singular mission of saving and restoring our nation.

25. Therefore, there is the explicit necessity of not doing the following: committing unforced errors, pursuing matters of unnecessary and/or secondary importance, introducing too many non- essential narratives into the public discourse, overwhelming or confusing the people with scattered maneuverings, getting involved in foreign entanglements or wars, and most importantly, not becoming internally divided.

Upcoming elections including 2026 midterms 2026 midterms (26- 32)

26. The red wave of the 2024 election was a repudiation of the direction the country was heading in, the malignancy of the previous administration, and the overall inversion of the Democratic Party.

27. That wave gave a great amount of momentum and credibility to the whole realm of "America first", and an enormous amount of valuable national support and political capital to spend on doing what is essential and right for the country, which centered on that which generations of Americans agreed on as to our greatness.

28. President Trump and his administration have done a significant amount of good for the country and have executed a number of truly necessary and outstanding actions, including making the southern border the safest in its history, ending wokeism in the federal government, addressing crime, endorsing MAHA, and much more.

29. However, there have been notable shortcomings that need to be addressed. This is because a certain critical amount of that momentum, credibility, and key political capital has been lost, squandered, and ill-spent by the Trump administration as a result of precisely some of that which has been outlined: distraction, unnecessary pursuits, incoherency at times, and unforced errors that were not readily corrected or poorly communicated (Epstein, Iran, etc.)

We have leveraged great effort, authority, and resources in going halfway around the world to deal with the enemy without, while failing to do the hard things at home regarding the enemy within.

30. As a result, not only has so much of the good and great things that the Trump administration has done been obscured but also has so much of the wrong that was done to our country by the enemy within been obscured – which has therefore made viable and legitimized that which should be unviable and entirely delegitimized.

31. All of this has clearly impacted the upcoming 2026 Midterms. For, given the destructive and deteriorated state of the Democratic Party, and the fact that the GOP has had control for two years to demonstrate to the American people their efficacy, the GOP should be lined up for a decisive and overwhelming victory (including in the House). Stunningly, it is now all up in the air.

32. This failure, and certainly along with the media's absolute complicity in not exposing the truth, has given life to a version of the Democratic Party that never could have existed at any other time in American history. It is certain that not one Democrat running now could have even won a primary in the Democratic Party in the past, let alone won a general election.

33. Going forward and regardless of the Midterms, President Trump (and his administration) especially must be refocused on exactly what got him elected. He (and they) must clearly and directly address the legitimate concerns that led many ordinary supporters to become dissatisfied.

Other Points

34. In recent history, it has been a crisis of leadership that has, in large part, created the conditions that have recently made our nation the most vulnerable to subjugation and annihilation in its history – as denoted by the many crises that we have been simultaneously facing, including a very real threat of nuclear conflict.

35. American politics and leadership are at their best when both parties are most aligned with American values and least corrupted by the antitheses of these.

36. In recent years, the Democratic Party has so lost its way that it has become unlike anything we have ever seen in American history, even working against America herself in many instances that can clearly be enumerated.

37. Old school Democrats and liberals must recapture their party and completely repudiate the harmful, wrongful, and entirely untenable concepts and counterfeit elements that have gained predominance in the party and menaced the nation.

38. All political parties must strongly check (and divest themselves to whatever degree necessary) from any unnatural influence from any industry or lobby group – foreign or domestic – that in any way compromises the ability to remain in the full light of truth.

39. The astounding and dire problems that have been generated in America (and in the world) have both natural and spiritual causes and therefore require both natural and spiritual solutions.

40. A new, great awakening —both spiritual and cultural – one that touches every aspect of our society is the greatest need of our times. This includes a sweeping course correction and a radical return to an enlightened society and the fundamentals of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

41. If America's leaders are going to be effective and on the right side of history, a dramatically new, elevated, and sharpened approach to leadership must be taken – one that is holistic in nature and centers on true spiritual strength, character, reliance on God, courage, wisdom, and a relentless pursuit of truth and justice.

42. Without having God, our leaders will fail the nation when it matters most. They will simply lack the courage, wisdom, conviction, and strength to do what is most essential at the most critical moments.

43. We are living in a post-political world where our politics and discourse are no longer about truth and a healthy, vigorous exchange of subtle differences, but instead are about good vs. evil, protecting the fundamental order of things, and the survival of a nation.

44. The despotism, degeneracy, dishonesty, and irrationality that is now becoming part of the working philosophy of the left directly oppose every concept of truth and reason that was responsible for not only America's existence, but for the very foundation of Western civilization itself.

45. Those who are in any way taking part in the destruction of our country or culture are ultimately bringing dishonor, recrimination, and reproach upon themselves. They are known in part now but will be known more fully in the near future for who they are and what they are doing.

46. The first purpose of Congress in its multiple responsibilities is to protect the wholeness and sanctity of this nation, along with the peace, prosperity, freedom, and health of the good people of our country.

47. Any leader from any background who does not now forcefully, soundly, unequivocally, and entirely reject, expose, and work to reverse the clear and established pattern of socialism, rising tyranny, and sabotage of America in all its forms is a leader who is no longer fit to serve.
